Kidnaped U.S. Embassy Official Said Wounded

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — Heavily armed policemen and soldiers threw a drag-net around Montevideo today in a search for guerrillas who kidnaped a U.S. Embassy official and a Brazilian diplomat and demanded the release of political prisoners as ransom.

The American, Dean A. Mitri-one, 50, a public safety adviser for the Agency for International Development (AID), was reported shot in the chest when kidnapped by Uruguay's Tupamaro guerrillas Friday.

The Tupamaros, Latin America's oldest urban guerrilla group, also abducted Aloisio Mares Dias Gomide, 41, from his home Friday. Dias Gomide is Brazilian consul and first secretary of the Brazilian Embassy.

The guerrillas failed in simultaneous attempts to kidnap two other U.S. officials.

In a note to the newspaper El Diario, the kidnapers demanded release of an unspecified number of political prisoners. The note also said Mitri-one had undergone emergency surgery for a gunshot wound in the chest but that his condition was not grave.

President Jorge Pacheco Areco's government did not say whether the ransom demand would be met. In the past, the government has taken a hard line against insurgents.

Mitri-one was driving to work when a band of Tupamaros crashed a stolen station wagon into his auto. They hustled him to another car and sped away.

Dias Gomide, clad in pajamas, was kidnapped from his home at gunpoint by four men posing as telephone repairmen. His wife and six children, in another part of the house, were unharmed.

Gordon Jones, 26, the U.S. Embassy's second secretary, was ambushed as he left his home for work. He was wrapped in a blanket, bound and hustled to a car, but managed to leap from the auto when it slowed at an intersection.

Nathan Rosenfeld, 58, the embassy's cultural affairs officer, was hit on the head as he entered his garage. He fell, and the kidnapers fled, apparently thinking they had killed him.

Irish Outbreak In 2nd Night; Damage Heavy

British Troops Use Gunfire, Water Cannon

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The British army used every available kind of riot weapon early today against Roman Catholic street gangs rampaging through this capital city for the second consecutive night.

Marksmen opened fire on gasoline bombers, and soldiers manned water cannons and moved in on the crowds behind blankets of tear and nausea gas.

The disturbances began before midnight and raged past dawn. There were at least two arrests but no reported injuries. The area was reported quiet by 6 a.m.

The violence apparently was a reaction to the shooting death Friday of Daniel O'Hagan, 19. He allegedly threw firebombs at troops in a melee touched off by the arrest of two youths who later were freed.

Rioters used rocks, bottles, paving stones, flaming gasoline bombs—and even steel-tipped arrows from long bows—against the troops in this morning's fighting. The outlawed Irish Republican Army threatened to kill one British soldier for each Irishman killed.

Flames and explosions from burning vehicles and a warehouse gave a blood-red backdrop to the street battles.

The fighting began when two army vehicles were ambushed in the New Lodge Road area—a frequent trouble spot and the scene of Thursday night's fighting. Reinforcements were summoned, and the rioters retreated behind barricades of automobiles and a commandeered bus whose passengers fled as the vehicles were set afire.

Cold Front Pushes Way To Midwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A cold front which swept through the Midwest, sparking severe thunderstorms, brought relief today from a seige of warm, muggy weather. The East and South continued to swelter in humid tropical air.

Strong winds accompanied the thunderstorms as they moved through Iowa and Wisconsin Friday night and into Illinois, Missouri and Kansas today.

Lawrence, Kan., received considerable damage as power lines and trees were downed and buildings raked by the strong winds.

Trees and utility line damage was reported in many areas of eastern Kansas and Western Missouri.

Locally heavy rains were common in the storm area. Elkhart, Ind., was drenched with 1.57 inches of rain in three-quarters of an hour and Springfield, Mo., received three-quarters of an inch in 20 minutes.

Police reported sighting a tornado near Peoria, Ill., but there was no known damage.

Showers and thunderstorms also were scattered along the Atlantic states, the Ohio Valley, the Gulf, the southern Plains, and the central and southern Rockies.

Temperatures in the early morning ranged from 49 at Kalispell, Mont., to 96 at Needles, Calif.

Strike By Truckers Hurts Road Work

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Highway Director P. E. Masheter said Friday a strike by cement truck drivers might force a shutdown of some highway construction projects.

Drivers walked off the job several weeks ago when a contract between the Ohio Conference of Teamsters and the Cement Haulers of Ohio expired. Negotiations reportedly are at a stand still.

Del Corso Urges KSU Grand Jury

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Adj. Gen. S. T. Del Corso wants a grand jury to probe the killing of four Kent State University students last May "because we cannot let the finger pointed at the National Guard go unchallenged."

And, he added, "we should not let the people who caused all of this trouble go scot free."

Del Corso predicted Friday that if a grand jury investigates the shootings during campus disturbances at Kent about 10 persons would be indicted, but none of them would be Guardsmen.

"There was no willful or wanton misconduct by the Guardsmen," he declared.

An Ohio National Guard report on the shooting deaths has not yet been released.

However, there are reports it has concluded that the Guardsmen fired because they felt their lives were endangered by on-rushing students and nonstudents.

This would differ sharply from an FBI report which, although also not yet released, allegedly says the shootings were unnecessary.

Formal Cease-Fire Paper Being Planned By Israelis

U.S. To Start Middle East Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — With hope that an Arab-Israeli peace settlement may at last be possible, the United States plans to start diplomatic talks at once with Egypt, Jordan and Israel on arrangements for a cease-fire in the Middle East war.

Authorities here would not predict when a cease-fire might go into effect but some believe it may be only a matter of days.

Meanwhile, following up Israel's acceptance of a U.S. peace plan Friday, Washington officials expect that United Nations mediator Gunnar Jarring will begin consultations in New York promptly on the time, place and other details for opening actual negotiations on a Middle East settlement.

Jarring, Swedish ambassador to Moscow who is operating as mediator under U.N. auspices, is due in New York from Sweden late Sunday.

The Israeli government, torn by a cabinet dispute over the risks of agreeing to a cease-fire and the problems of negotiation, was the last of the three governments which received the U.S. proposal to decide on acceptance. Egypt was first, followed by Jordan.

Notification of the Israeli action was sent immediately to Secretary of State William P. Rogers and President Nixon Friday. A formal statement from the Israeli government is being prepared and U.S. officials expect it to reach the State Department and the San Clemente White House within a couple of days.

Once that statement is in hand, officials said, detailed exchanges through U.S. diplomatic channels will be started between Jordan and Egypt on one hand and Israel on the other regarding the time and conditions for halting the shooting.

Some preliminary contacts apparently are already under way. Assistant Secretary of State Joseph Sisco, a key figure in the U.S. peace drive, conferred for an hour Friday with Israeli Ambassador Yitzhak Rabin.

President Nixon, acclaiming the Israeli acceptance in a meeting with newsmen at San Clemente, mixed expressions of hope for peace with warnings of the difficulties which he said still lie ahead. He also stressed a need for some concessions by both sides.

"We do not underestimate the difficulties which still lie ahead," Nixon said, "but the cease-fire and the negotiations that now appear within reach are an essential beginning."

"We still have a long way to go before achieving the results we hope to achieve. But in a situation where a year and a half ago there seemed to be no hope there now is some hope—some hope that a peaceful settlement can be arrived at."

What has happened so far, Nixon declared, is only a first step.

"It will require moderation, flexibility and a willingness by both sides to accept something less than their maximum position if progress toward a just and lasting peace between the parties to be made," he said.

TATE CASE OUTLOOKS — Linda Kasabian presents a calm demeanor between court sessions in Los Angeles, where she is testifying about the killing of seven persons — the Tate-LaBianca case. But Leslie Van Houten, one of the four on trial, looks as though it's a picnic.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Showing the strain of five days on the witness stand in the Sharon Tate murder trial, Linda Kasabian has vehemently denied she is testifying only to save her own life.

"I would give my life for the people who were killed," she said.

Mrs. Kasabian, who testified that Charles Manson ordered his followers to kill Miss Tate and six others, began crying Friday under cross-examination by defense attorney Paul Fitzgerald.

It happened when he asked the state's star witness to recall a day last winter when authorities took her from jail to Miss Tate's rented mansion to pinpoint locations described in her story of the killings of the actress and six others in two nights last August.

"Some dogs came up," she said, "and I remember saying: 'Why couldn't dogs have been here that night?' And I started crying."

"Why did you cry?" Fitzgerald asked.

"Because I had seen something horrible and I was at the same spot," the witness said.

Mrs. Kasabian said under questioning that she had been promised immunity for her testimony and she realizes that this will release her from charges of seven counts of murder and one of conspiracy.

On trial with Manson, 35, are Susan "Sadie" Atkins, 21; Patricia "Katie" Krenwinkel, 22 and Leslie Van Houten, 20.

A large portion of the cross-examination dealt with Mrs. Kasabian's use of hallucinogenic drugs. She told of living in about 11 drug-oriented communes across the country since the age of 16. Her life, she said, was "just a constant moving back and forth, but always with other people."

Mrs. Kasabian's cross-examination continues when court resumes Monday.

Muleshoe Postmark Returns

WASHINGTON (AP) — The folks in Muleshoe are happy again. They got their postmark back—at least between the hours of 8 and 5.

The West Texas town of 5,225 lost its postmark several weeks ago when the Post Office Department implemented what one Washington spokesman called a "mail service improvement activity."

Under the system, all letters mailed in Muleshoe were sacked up and shipped to a new mail processing facility in Lubbock for sorting by a big, expensive machine. All the letters ended up with a Lubbock postmark.

"The citizens of Muleshoe have a lot of pride in Muleshoe," said Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce president Don Harmon, and the loss of their postmark means "we are losing our identity."

Besides, Harmon complained in a letter to Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., with the "improved" system it took letters six days to get to Dallas instead of the two days required before.

Yarborough carried the complaints—and a protest petition bearing hundreds of signatures—to the Senate floor. "The people of Muleshoe deserve better treatment from their government than this," he proclaimed.

Finally, this week a compromise was worked out.

Now you can get your letter postmarked "Muleshoe" if you deposit them in the "local" slot at the post office between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. After that, your letter gets a Lubbock postmark.

Hatfield Says Arms Budget Could Be Cut By $15 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's defense budget for the current fiscal year could be slashed by as much as $15 billion without endangering national security, says Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore.

"I think we should realize that the posture and weapons system requested by the Defense Department as essential to security do not carry with them any mandate from heaven," Hatfield said during debate on the defense budget Friday.

He asserted the $72 billion budget proposed by the administration will create an insecure country—due to domestic problems—rather than protect national security.

U.S. military spending has not reflected the nation's foreign policy, Hatfield said. "Without rewriting a single treaty, canceling a single commitment, or reversing a strategic objective, we could virtually eliminate as much as $15 billion from this year's defense budget and enhance our overall national security."

As Hatfield called for budget cuts, Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, urged his colleagues to move quickly on the bill, which he said is a barebones minimum.

But the Senate gave no indication of quitting its debate on the $19.2 billion military-procurement bill which includes provisions to cut off funds for the Vietnam war and to expand the antiballistic-missile system.

Senators opposed to ABM expansion said Friday they will attempt to limit the system to completion of sites at Malmstrom Air Base, Mont., and Grand Forks Air Base, N.D. This would deny funds for expanding the system to Whiteman Air Base, Mo., and Warren Air Base, Wyo.

The Armed Services Committee has cut $1.3 billion from the defense budget. Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Friday the Appropriations Committee and the Senate should make additional cuts.

Move Blasted By Guerrillas, Syria, Iraq

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Consultations were under way in the Middle East, in the United States and at the United Nations today on how and when to implement the U.S. plan for an Arab-Israeli cease-fire.

U.S. officials in Washington said the Israeli government, which accepted the plan Friday, is preparing a formal statement that should reach the State Department and President Nixon's Western White House in San Clemente Calif., within a couple of days.

As soon as the statement is received, officials said, detailed exchanges through U.S. diplomatic channels will be started between Israel and the Jordanian and Egyptian governments concerning the time and conditions for halting the shooting.

Egypt and Jordan have already accepted the U.S. plan, which was proposed June 19 by Secretary of State William P. Rogers.

It has been condemned by the major Palestinian guerrilla organizations, however, and has been rejected by Syria and Iraq, although Rogers did not ask for their approval.

The plan calls for a 90-day cease-fire and for peace negotiations under U.N. mediator Gunnar Jarring of Sweden. It also requests both sides to honor the U.N. Security Council resolution of November 1967, which called on Israel to pull back its forces from Arab territory captured in the June 1967 war and asked the Arabs to recognize Israel's right to exist as a state.

Jarring is due to arrive in New York from Sweden Sunday and is expected to begin consultations immediately on the time, place and other details for opening peace negotiations.

In Cairo, the semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram attacked Arabs who have criticized Nasser's acceptance of the U.S. plan, but also said Israel's acceptance statement went "far beyond the U.N. Security Council resolution of 1967 and the American proposals themselves."

Al-Ahram said the statement was "vague and contained interpretations that exceed the U.N. resolution, which did not

Negro Author Louis Lomax Crash Victim

SANTA ROSA, N.M. (AP) — Commentator Louis Lomax, author of "The Negro Revolt" and "When the Word Is Given," has been killed in an auto accident near here. He was 47.

The black writer, who moved from California to New York last year to take a teaching post at Hofstra University, had been visiting the West Coast on a lecture tour.

State police said his car overturned Thursday on a highway 26 miles from Santa Rosa after he lost control while trying to pass another car.

Report of the death was delayed until Friday when his widow, Robinette, was notified. The couple had two children, Robin, 15, and William, 12, and lived in Baldwin, N.Y.

Lomax, known as a major interpreter of the integration movement, did not hold back criticism of either side.

"You must have the guts to stand up and tell a black student when he is wrong," he said last year in a speech after black students occupied the Vassar College administration building for three days.

In 1964, Lomax criticized the complacency of many black and white leaders about the rate of change.

Reds Start Powerful Offensive In Cambodia

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Thousands of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops launched one of the broadest and most powerful offensives of the Cambodian war today.

The offensive was aimed at crushing major Cambodian strongpoints remaining in the northern part of the country and north and northwest of Phnom Penh.

Heavy attacks were reported under way at several key points in an arc stretching from 35 miles northwest of Phnom Penh to 80 miles north of the capital. The heaviest blow fell on the provincial capital of Kompong Thom, 80 miles north of Phnom Penh, where South Vietnamese AC47 gunships temporarily halted the attacks.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops attacked a key route in a sector of Skoun in Kompong Cham Province, 40 miles northeast of Phnom Penh.

Kompong Cham City, capital of the province and a military regional headquarters, was harassed during the night.

A Cambodian spokesman said 2,000 to 3,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were in the Skoun-Kompong Cham area, apparently preparing for renewed attempts to take Kompong Cham, the key Mekong River city and government defensive anchor in the northeast.

While the Communist command mounted the big offensive, fighting in South Vietnam lapsed into its quietest day in more than a month.

Neither the U.S. nor South Vietnamese commands reported any significant ground fighting in their evening communiques.

In a delayed report, the U.S. Command said an Army helicopter crashed on take-off

CAB To Tighten Up Rules Governing Charter Flights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board is going ahead with plans to tighten charter flight regulations, despite pressure from Congress. But the CAB says it expects some changes in the tough guidelines it has proposed.

Suspension of the proposed rules pending congressional review would be most undesirable, CAB Chairman Secor D. Browne said in a letter to Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., a member of the House Commerce Committee.

Browne said action on the new rules must be made quickly to be effective for the 1971 charter season.

Moss and other congressmen have complained mainly about a new rule that eliminates many civil, fraternal and social organizations from eligibility for low-cost charter flights—simply because of the large size of the groups.

Browne said final action by the CAB will take into account the views of the traveling public and the airlines. "We would anticipate that modifications to the proposals—even substantial ones—would be made before final action by the board," he wrote Moss.

Despite the board's intention to act quickly, Rep. Samuel N. Friedel, D-Md., chairman of the House subcommittee on transportation and aeronautics, said Friday he will start hearings on the proposed regulations Aug. 10.

Under the new rules, charter flight eligibility would be limited to groups of no more than 20,000 members buying no more than 2,000 airplane tickets in a calendar year.

Complaints have come from a number of organizations too big to qualify. These include state associations of dentists, lawyers, pharmacists, teachers and food dealers; college alumni groups and various civic clubs.

Moss told Browne the CAB proposals are contrary both to the board's duty to promote air transportation and to the President's recent statement on international air policy calling for equal treatment for scheduled and charter airlines.

Browne replied that the CAB is trying to deal with widespread abuses of current charter regulations.

2nd Inmate Found Slain In Penitentiary

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Penitentiary officials have reported the second killing of an inmate within 32 hours.

Deputy Warden Lowell Ridenour said Gene Henry Welch, 34, of Jackson, was found lying in about four inches of water in a catchbasin in the basement of the prison powerhouse early Friday.

Ridenour said Welch "had been beaten on the head with what was apparently a blunt instrument."

Welch was serving a sentence for parole violation and auto theft. He had been convicted on two other occasions for auto theft.

Welch's death followed by little more than a day the fatal stabbing of Joseph Adams, 31, of Youngstown.

Adams was killed late Wednesday as he and a group of fellow powerhouse night shift inmates filed toward the prison dining hall.

Adams, stabbed through the chest, was serving time for abduction for immoral purposes, cutting with intent to kill and auto theft.

Investigators from the Ohio Highway Patrol and the prison declined to speculate whether the two cases had any connection.

Prison officials said scores of inmates would be questioned in the search for both murder weapons and motives in the killings.

Once that statement is in hand, officials said, detailed exchanges through U.S. diplomatic channels will be started between Jordan and Egypt on one hand and Israel on the other regarding the time and conditions for halting the shooting.

Some preliminary contacts apparently are already under way. Assistant Secretary of State Joseph Sisco, a key figure in the U.S. peace drive, conferred for an hour Friday with Israeli Ambassador Yitzhak Rabin.

President Nixon, acclaiming the Israeli acceptance in a meeting with newsmen at San Clemente, mixed expressions of hope for peace with warnings of the difficulties which he said still lie ahead. He also stressed a need for some concessions by both sides.

"We do not underestimate the difficulties which still lie ahead," Nixon said, "but the cease-fire and the negotiations that now appear within reach are an essential beginning."

"We still have a long way to go before achieving the results we hope to achieve. But in a situation where a year and a half ago there seemed to be no hope there now is some hope—some hope that a peaceful settlement can be arrived at."

What has happened so far, Nixon declared, is only a first step.

"It will require moderation, flexibility and a willingness by both sides to accept something less than their maximum position if progress toward a just and lasting peace between the parties to be made," he said.

Move Blasted By Guerrillas, Syria, Iraq

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Consultations were under way in the Middle East, in the United States and at the United Nations today on how and when to implement the U.S. plan for an Arab-Israeli cease-fire.

U.S. officials in Washington said the Israeli government, which accepted the plan Friday, is preparing a formal statement that should reach the State Department and President Nixon's Western White House in San Clemente Calif., within a couple of days.

As soon as the statement is received, officials said, detailed exchanges through U.S. diplomatic channels will be started between Israel and the Jordanian and Egyptian governments concerning the time and conditions for halting the shooting.

Egypt and Jordan have already accepted the U.S. plan, which was proposed June 19 by Secretary of State William P. Rogers.

It has been condemned by the major Palestinian guerrilla organizations, however, and has been rejected by Syria and Iraq, although Rogers did not ask for their approval.

The plan calls for a 90-day cease-fire and for peace negotiations under U.N. mediator Gunnar Jarring of Sweden. It also requests both sides to honor the U.N. Security Council resolution of November 1967, which called on Israel to pull back its forces from Arab territory captured in the June 1967 war and asked the Arabs to recognize Israel's right to exist as a state.

Jarring is due to arrive in New York from Sweden Sunday and is expected to begin consultations immediately on the time, place and other details for opening peace negotiations.

In Cairo, the semiofficial newspaper Al Ahran attacked Arabs who have criticized Nasser's acceptance of the U.S. plan, but also said Israel's acceptance statement went "far beyond the U.N. Security Council resolution of 1967 and the American proposals themselves."

Al Ahran said the statement was "vague and contained interpretations that exceed the U.N. resolution, which did not

Tate Witness Denies She's Trying To Save Own Life

TATE CASE OUTLOOKS — Linda Kasabian presents a calm demeanor between court sessions in Los Angeles, where she is testifying about the killing of seven persons — the Tate-LaBianca case. But Leslie Van Houten, one of the four on trial, looks as though it's a picnic.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Showing the strain of five days on the witness stand in the Sharon Tate murder trial, Linda Kasabian has vehemently denied she is testifying only to save her own life.

"I would give my life for the people who were killed," she said.

Mrs. Kasabian, who testified that Charles Manson ordered his followers to kill Miss Tate and six others, began crying Friday under cross-examination by defense attorney Paul Fitzgerald.

It happened when he asked the state's star witness to recall a day last winter when authorities took her from jail to Miss Tate's rented mansion to pinpoint locations described in her story of the killings of the actress and six others in two nights last August.

"Some dogs came up," she said, "and I remember saying: 'Why couldn't dogs have been here that night?' And I started crying."

"Why did you cry?" Fitzgerald asked.

"Because I had seen something horrible and I was at the same spot," the witness said.

Mrs. Kasabian said under questioning that she had been promised immunity for her testimony and she realizes that this will release her from charges of seven counts of murder and one of conspiracy.

On trial with Manson, 35, are Susan "Sadie" Atkins, 21; Patricia "Katie" Krenwinkel, 22 and Leslie Van Houten, 20.

A large portion of the cross-examination dealt with Mrs. Kasabian's use of hallucinogenic drugs. She told of living in about 11 drug-oriented communities across the country since the age of 16. Her life, she said, was "just a constant moving back and forth, but always with other people."

Mrs. Kasabian's cross-examination continues when court resumes Monday.

Muleshoe Postmark Returns

WASHINGTON (AP) — The folks in Muleshoe are happy again. They got their postmark back—at least between the hours of 8 and 5.

The West Texas town of 5,225 lost its postmark several weeks ago when the Post Office Department implemented what one Washington spokesman called a "mail service improvement activity."

Under the system, all letters mailed in Muleshoe were sacked up and shipped to a new mail processing facility in Lubbock for sorting by a big, expensive machine. All the letters ended up with a Lubbock postmark.

"The citizens of Muleshoe have a lot of pride in Muleshoe," said Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce president Don Harmon, and the loss of their postmark means "we are losing our identity."

Besides, Harmon complained in a letter to Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., with the "improved" system it took letters six days to get to Dallas instead of the two days required before.

Yarborough carried the complaints—and a protest petition bearing hundreds of signatures—to the Senate floor. "The people of Muleshoe deserve better treatment from their government than this," he proclaimed.

Finally, this week a compromise was worked out.

Now you can get your letter postmarked "Muleshoe" if you deposit them in the "local" slot at the post office between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. After that, your letter gets a Lubbock postmark.

Hatfield Says Arms Budget Could Be Cut By $15 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's defense budget for the current fiscal year could be slashed by as much as $15 billion without endangering national security, says Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore.

"I think we should realize that the posture and weapons system requested by the Defense Department as essential to security do not carry with them any mandate from heaven," Hatfield said during debate on the defense budget Friday.

He asserted the $72 billion budget proposed by the administration will create an insecure country—due to domestic problems—rather than protect national security.

U.S. military spending has not reflected the nation's foreign policy, Hatfield said. "Without rewriting a single treaty, canceling a single commitment, or reversing a strategic objective, we could virtually eliminate as much as $15 billion from this year's defense budget and enhance our overall national security."

As Hatfield called for budget cuts, Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, urged his colleagues to move quickly on the bill, which he said is a bare-bones minimum.

But the Senate gave no indication of quitting its debate on the $19.2 billion military-procurement bill which includes provisions to cut off funds for the Vietnam war and to expand the antiballistic-missile system.

Sensors opposed to ABM expansion said Friday they will attempt to limit the system to completion of sites at Malmstrom Air Base, Mont., and Grand Forks Air Base, N.D. This would deny funds for expanding the system to Whiteman Air Base, Mo., and Warren Air Base, Wyo.

The Armed Services Committee has cut $1.3 billion from the defense budget. Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Friday the Appropriations Committee and the Senate should make additional cuts.

Reds Start Powerful Offensive In Cambodia

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Thousands of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops launched one of the broadest and most powerful offensives of the Cambodian war today.

The offensive was aimed at crushing major Cambodian strongpoints remaining in the northern part of the country and north and northwest of Phnom Penh.

Heavy attacks were reported under way at several key points in an arc stretching from 35 miles northwest of Phnom Penh to 80 miles north of the capital. The heaviest blow fell on the provincial capital of Kompong Thom, 80 miles north of Phnom Penh, where South Vietnamese AC47 gunships temporarily halted the attacks.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops attacked a key route in a sector of Skoun in Kompong Cham Province, 40 miles northeast of Phnom Penh.

Kompong Cham City, capital of the province and a military regional headquarters, was harassed during the night.

A Cambodian spokesman said 2,000 to 3,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were in the Skoun-Kompong Cham area, apparently preparing for renewed attempts to take Kompong Cham, the key Mekong River city and government defensive anchor in the northeast.

While the Communist command mounted the big offensive, fighting in South Vietnam lapsed into its quietest day in more than a month.

Neither the U.S. nor South Vietnamese commands reported any significant ground fighting in their evening communiques.

Negro Author Louis Lomax Crash Victim

SANTA ROSA, N.M. (AP) — Commentator Louis Lomax, author of "The Negro Revolt" and "When The Word Is Given," has been killed in an auto accident near here. He was 47.

The black writer, who moved from California to New York last year to take a teaching post at Hofstra University, had been visiting the West Coast on a lecture tour.

State police said his car overturned Thursday on a highway 26 miles from Santa Rosa after he lost control while trying to pass another car.

Report of the death was delayed until Friday when his widow, Robinette, was notified. The couple had two children, Robin, 15, and William, 12, and lived in Baldwin, N.Y.

Lomax, known as a major interpreter of the integration movement, did not hold back criticism of either side.

"You must have the guts to stand up and tell a black student when he is wrong," he said last year in a speech after black students occupied the Vassar College administration building for three days.

In 1964, Lomax criticized the complacency of many black and white leaders about the rate of change.

Rhodes OKs Extradition Of 2 Men

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Extradition papers for removal of two more defendants in the Joseph Yablonski murder case in Pennsylvania were signed Thursday by Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Rhodes signed papers for removal of Paul E. Gilly, 36, and Aubran W. Martin, 21, both of the Cleveland area.

The governor had previously authorized the extradition of Claude E. Vealey, 26, who yesterday received a one-week continuance in his appeal proceedings in Cleveland.

Vealey's hearing is being delayed to allow his attorney, Elmer A. Giuliani, more time to gather evidence needed to fight extradition.

Vealey, Gilly and Martin are among five persons indicted by a federal grand jury in Cleveland on conspiracy charges in the Yablonski slayings. The five are also charged in Pennsylvania with murder.

Yablonski, a United Mine Workers rebel, his wife, and their daughter were shot to death in their Clarksville, Pa., home last Dec. 30.

The others charged are Gilly's wife, Annette, 29, of Cleveland, and Silous Huddleston, 61, president of a UMW local in La Follette, Tennessee.

After years of producing industrial diamonds in laboratories, scientists recently turned out the first stones suitable for jewelry. True diamonds, they were made by duplicating the tremendous heat and pressure found 240 miles or more beneath the earth's surface. The synthetic process is only experimental, however, and so expensive that the new jewels are not competitive with natural diamonds.

Referendum For Wheat Postponed

Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin has announced postponement of the National Wheat Referendum previously scheduled for July 27-31, according to Harle H. Hicks, chairman of the Ohio State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee. The action was authorized by Congress.

The postponement permits the USDA to delay holding the referendum not later than Oct. 15, or 30 days after Congress adjourns, whichever date is earlier.

Accordingly, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's ASCS, which administers the wheat, feed grain and similar programs, has instructed its State and county offices across the Nation to withhold ballots and other referendum materials, Mr. Hicks said.

The chairman explained that basic farm legislation requires a referendum for wheat marketing quotas. However, the Agricultural Act of 1965 suspended this referendum requirement from 1965 through the 1970 crop year. Unless new farm legislation, now pending, is enacted by the Congress, basic legislation will again go into effect and a referendum will then be required in 1970 for the 1971 crop years.

Coal Shortage May Curtail Armco Work

CINCINNATI (AP) — Armco Steel Corp. is faced with the possibility of having to lay off employees at four of its five plants because of dwindling coal supplies.

The coal problem has been brought on by miners who have been on strike in fields in Southern West Virginia and Eastern Kentucky although some began returning to work Thursday.

At a joint news conference here Thursday, representatives of Ohio and Michigan utility companies; and of Ohio hospitals and manufacturing firms said that rising coal prices and shortages were causing a critical situation in the United States.

R. P. Hindman, administrative vice president of the Steel Group of Armco, said the company would have to begin laying off workers and curtailing operations at its plants, in Middle-town, Ohio; Hamilton, Ohio; Ashland, Ky.; and Houston, Texas.

He said that Armco has only a 10 day supply of coal left. Normal supply for Middletown plant is 30 to 45 days as it uses 10,000 tons of coal daily. As many as 17,000 workers at the Armco plants could be affected eventually, Hindman said.

A Cincinnati Gas Electric Co. executive, Arthur E. Schwender, vice president, said CGE has experienced coal price increases as high as 25 per cent in the past year, and the cost of coal on spot orders to supplement long term deliveries has doubled.

Tom Andrews of the Dayton Power and Light Co. said that the price of coal has tripled in the last two years.

Stanley Longfells, associate administrator of Cincinnati General Hospital, said that not only has the price of coal increased, the quality is "inferior." A spokesman for the Hamilton, Ohio, city utility division, concurred.

Recent publicity about "obesity clinics" and "rainbow pills" has created wide interest in the use of drugs for weight control. Many concerned individuals are asking: "Are all 'diet' pills unsafe?" "Can any drug safely be used for weight reduction?"

At a Senate hearing on "diet" pills in February, 1968, the Commissioner of Food and Drugs said, "there are no drugs that can safely control the problem of obesity... There is no easy, painless way for an overweight person to eat what he or she wants and to melt off the excess fat by taking one or a dozen drugs a day." At best, he noted, some drugs can give a short term relief to reduce appetite and can assist a patient to change established eating patterns and maintain a carefully controlled diet.

"Rainbow" diet pills, as the expression has recently been used, refers to the combined use of a variety of drugs offered in different shapes, shades and colors. The patient is told to follow such directions as: "Take 1 brown, 1 pink and 1 yellow pill before breakfast; 1 blue pill before lunch; 1 red pill before dinner and 1 orange and 1 white pill before retiring." These drugs are generally dispensed directly to the patient by the doctor.

The "rainbow" combination may include some of the following types of drugs: amphetamines, barbiturates, thyroid and other hormones, diuretics, laxatives, antispasmodics and hypotensive agents.

When prescribed for an appropriate medical purpose and used with adequate medical supervision, these drugs are safe and effective in medical treatment. However, the Food and Drug Administration considers the combination of these drugs for the treatment of simple obesity to be irrational and potentially harmful to health. This judgment was sustained by a Federal court which ordered one of the major manufacturers of "rainbow pills" to stop selling thyroid and digitalis for treatment of obesity.

The public should be aware that the various combinations of these drugs in the "rainbow pill" regimens can be hazardous. Patients may be told they can eat whatever they want and still lose weight. They may sometimes lose weight temporarily, but at a risk to their health. Because some drugs hide the harmful effects of other drugs in "rainbow pill" programs, patients may not experience the symptoms that warn of damage being done to the body until it is too late.

Overweight people should avoid so-called effortless weight

More Farmers Receive Farm Program Payments

Approximately 60 per cent of the farmers of Pickaway County have received payments for participation in the 1970 wheat and feed grain programs, according to George E. Stump, chairman of the Pickaway County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee.

"The bulk of payments should be made by mid-August if farmers who signed up complete the necessary certification indicating that they have complied with all the program provisions," Stump stated. This is earlier than payments have been made in previous years.

Stump pointed out that these payments to farmers have an impact on the entire community because most of the money remains in the local area where farmers pay for the things they need to buy. Participation by reducing schemes. Those who rely solely on drugs discover that they quickly gain weight again after they stop taking the medications. An individual who wants to lose excess pounds — and keep his health — must learn to limit the kind and the amount of food he eats. And he must exercise the necessary will power to change his eating habits on a long-term basis to keep from regaining the weight that's been lost. Reducing should generally be undertaken only with medical advice.

producers in farm programs helps even out the year-by-year flow of farm products to market, which also helps stabilize food and fiber prices, a benefit to consumers, he said.

"Farmers earn payments by diverting part of their cropland to conservation uses," Stump explained. "This helps keep a balance between supply and demand for food and fiber, preserves the excess acres for future use when they are needed and provides an orderly supply of farm products to consumers."

Restoration Of Painting OKd

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A request for $33,700 to restore and display the painting, "The Signing of the Treaty of Greenville," in the State Capitol was approved unanimously Friday by the State Board of Control.

Alfred Glenow, director of the Department of Public Works, requested the funds so the one-ton, 18 x 22-foot painting could be returned to the State House rotunda. The painting, by Howard Chandler Christy and unveiled in 1945, is now in storage.

Glenow did not say when the restoration or rehanging would begin.

Rhodes OKs Extradition Of 2 Men

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Extradition papers for removal of two more defendants in the Joseph Yablonski murder case in Pennsylvania were signed Thursday by Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Rhodes signed papers for removal of Paul E. Gilly, 36, and Aubran W. Martin, 21, both of the Cleveland area.

The governor had previously authorized the extradition of Claude E. Vealey, 26, who yesterday received a one-week continuance in his appeal proceedings in Cleveland.

Vealey's hearing is being delayed to allow his attorney, Elmer A. Giuliani, more time to gather evidence needed to fight extradition.

Vealey, Gilly and Martin are among five persons indicted by a federal grand jury in Cleveland on conspiracy charges in the Yablonski slayings. The five are also charged in Pennsylvania with murder.

Yablonski, a United Mine Workers rebel, his wife, and their daughter were shot to death in their Clarksville, Pa., home last Dec. 30.

The others charged are Gilly's wife, Annette, 29, of Cleveland, and Silous Huddleston, 61, president of a UMW local in La Follette, Tennessee.

After years of producing industrial diamonds in laboratories, scientists recently turned out the first stones suitable for jewelry. True diamonds, they were made by duplicating the tremendous heat and pressure found 240 miles or more beneath the earth's surface. The synthetic process is only experimental, however, and so expensive that the new jewels are not competitive with natural diamonds.

Skinner leading us in the 4-H pledge.

We were reminded that our horses must be at the fairgrounds by noon of August 2. The 4-H show will be Monday and the open class show will be Friday.

The next meeting will be 7 p.m. August 2 at the fairgrounds barns.

Refreshments were provided by Mrs. Crist and Mrs. Hay.

Referendum For Wheat Postponed

Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin has announced postponement of the National Wheat Referendum previously scheduled for July 27-31, according to Harle H. Hicks, chairman of the Ohio State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee. The action was authorized by Congress.

The postponement permits the USDA to delay holding the referendum not later than Oct. 15, or 30 days after Congress adjourns, whichever date is earlier.

Accordingly, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's ASCS, which administers the wheat, feed grain and similar programs, has instructed its State and county offices across the Nation to withhold ballots and other referendum materials, Mr. Hicks said.

The chairman explained that basic farm legislation requires a referendum for wheat marketing quotas. However, the Agricultural Act of 1965 suspended this referendum requirement from 1965 through the 1970 crop year. Unless new farm legislation, now pending, is enacted by the Congress, basic legislation will again go into effect and a referendum will then be required in 1970 for the 1971 crop years.

Coal Shortage May Curtail Armco Work

CINCINNATI (AP) — Armco Steel Corp. is faced with the possibility of having to lay off employees at four of its five plants because of dwindling coal supplies.

The coal problem has been brought on by miners who have been on strike in fields in Southern West Virginia and Eastern Kentucky although some began returning to work Thursday.

At a joint news conference here Thursday, representatives of Ohio and Michigan utility companies; and of Ohio hospitals and manufacturing firms said that rising coal prices and shortages were causing a critical situation in the United States.

R. P. Hindman, administrative vice president of the Steel Group of Armco, said the company would have to begin laying off workers and curtailing operations at its plants, in Middle-Ohio; Hamilton, Ohio; Ashland, Ky.; and Houston, Texas.

He said that Armco has only a 10 day supply of coal left. Normal supply for Middletown plant is 30 to 45 days as it uses 100,000 tons of coal daily. As many as 17,000 workers at the Armco plants could be affected eventually, Hindman said.

A Cincinnati Gas Electric Co. executive, Arthur Ekmenschwender, vice president, said CGE has experienced coal price increases as high as 25 per cent in the past year, and the cost of coal on spot orders to supplement long term deliveries has doubled.

Tom Andrews of the Dayton Power and Light Co. said that the price of coal has tripled in the last two years.

Stanley Longfells, associate administrator of Cincinnati General Hospital, said that not only has the price of coal increased, the quality is "inferior." A spokesman for the Hamilton, Ohio, city utility division, concurred.

Recent publicity about "obesity clinics" and "rainbow pills" has created wide interest in the use of drugs for weight control. Many concerned individuals are asking: "Are all 'diet' pills unsafe?" "Can any drug safely be used for weight reduction?"

At a Senate hearing on "diet" pills in February, 1968, the Commissioner of Food and Drugs said, "there are no drugs that can safely control the problem of obesity . . . There is no easy, painless way for an overweight person to eat what he or she wants and to melt off the excess fat by taking one or a dozen drugs a day." At best, he noted, some drugs can give a short term relief to reduce appetite and can assist a patient to change established eating patterns and maintain a carefully controlled diet.

"Rainbow" diet pills, as the expression has recently been used, refers to the combined use of a variety of drugs offered in different shapes, shades and colors. The patient is told to follow such directions as: "Take 1 brown, 1 pink and 1 yellow pill before breakfast; 1 blue pill before lunch; 1 red pill before dinner and 1 orange and 1 white pill before retiring." These drugs are generally dispensed directly to the patient by the doctor.

The "rainbow" combination may include some of the following types of drugs: amphetamines, barbiturates, thyroid and other hormones, digitalis, diuretics, laxatives, antispasmodics and hypotensive agents.

When prescribed for an appropriate medical purpose and used with adequate medical supervision, these drugs are safe and effective in medical treatment. However, the Food and Drug Administration considers the combination of these drugs for the treatment of simple obesity to be irrational and potentially harmful to health. This judgment was sustained by a Federal court which ordered one of the major manufacturers of "rainbow pills" to stop selling thyroid and digitalis for treatment of obesity.

The public should be aware that the various combinations of these drugs in the "rainbow pill" regimens can be hazardous. Patients may be told they can eat whatever they want and still lose weight. They may sometimes lose weight temporarily, but at a risk to their health. Because some drugs hide the harmful effects of other drugs in "rainbow pill" programs, patients may not experience the symptoms that warn of damage being done to the body until it is too late.

More Farmers Receive Farm Program Payments

Approximately 60 per cent of the farmers of Pickaway County have received payments for participation in the 1970 wheat and feed grain programs, according to George E. Stump, chairman of the Pickaway County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee.

"The bulk of payments should be made by mid-August if farmers who signed up complete the necessary certification indicating that they have complied with all the program provisions," Stump stated. This is earlier than payments have been made in previous years.

Stump pointed out that these payments to farmers have an impact on the entire community because most of the money remains in the local area where farmers pay for the things they need to buy. Participation by producers in farm programs helps even out the year-by-year flow of farm products to market, which also helps stabilize food and fiber prices, a benefit to consumers, he said.

"Farmers earn payments by diverting part of their cropland to conservation uses," Stump explained. "This helps keep a balance between supply and demand for food and fiber, preserves the excess acres for future use when they are needed and provides an orderly supply of farm products to consumers."

Restoration Of Painting OKd

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A request for $33,700 to restore and display the painting, "The Signing of the Treaty of Greenville," in the State Capitol was approved unanimously Friday by the State Board of Control.

Alfred Glenow, director of the Department of Public Works, requested the funds so the one-ton, 18 x 22-foot painting could be returned to the State House rotunda. The painting, by Howard C. Christy and unveiled in 1945, is now in storage.

Glenow did not say when the restoration or rehanging would begin.

U.S. Embassy

Official Kidnaped

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — A U.S. Embassy official was kidnaped today by left-wing urban guerrillas. They also attempted to kidnap two other U.S. Embassy officers, but failed, an embassy spokesman said.

Police reported the Brazilian consul, Aloisi Comitti, was kidnaped by the Tupamaro guerrilla organization moments after five terrorists seized Dan A. Mittrione, 50, a public safety adviser from Indiana. Mittrione is attached to the Agency for International Development.

Police reported Mittrione was found, apparently wounded, an hour later, in a Montevideo suburb. But a U.S. Embassy spokesman said he knew nothing about Mittrione having been found.

An Embassy spokesman said terrorists failed in an attempt this morning to kidnap Gordon Jones, the Embassy's second secretary, and Nathan Rosenfeld, cultural affairs officer.

Ohio Water Systems Fighting Pollution

By GEORGE DELL
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) —

Municipal water systems in Ohio have to work harder today to keep pollution out of drinking water.

They are succeeding very well according to George Eagle, chief of the Ohio Department of Health's Bureau of Environmental Health.

Eagle said the rising pollution of surface water, and to some extent in ground water, is being met with increased efforts to purify water pumped by the 720 municipal water systems in Ohio.

He said a major problem now is that treatment against pollution some times makes water taste odd.

"We have better quality water today than ever," he said. "The quality standards are under constant review. There is a continuing effort to reduce the bacteria content."

Public water systems in Ohio pump well over one billion gallons of water every day, about 25 per cent of it going for industrial purposes. The figures do not include private water systems.

Eagle's office is charged with helping local water plants keep a constant check on the safety of water. He has a staff of 170 technicians, engineers and office workers to do this.

If pollution appears in a municipal water supply Eagle's bureau is in position to act quickly. Only recently, he cautioned residents of one community they should boil drinking water.

Eagle's staff works with the U.S. Geological Survey, checking a network of 50 machines which constantly monitor water quality in state streams. His engineers review plans for new sewage treatment facilities.

Eagle cites the Ohio River as proof of his claim that things are getting better. Today, he says, more than 99 per cent of the communities and industry bordering the river treat their sewage to some degree. Forty years ago sewage treatment there was virtually "non-existent."

During a drought in the 1930's stagnant water pooled behind the Ohio's low dams turning the river into a "series of septic tanks." Many of those living along the river got sick drinking the water, Eagle said.

The most serious complaint in recent months was last winter when Portsmouth residents complained of a funny taste in the water. It was traced to an industry upstream.

Lake Erie, whose beaches were closed part of the summer because of pollution, poses another problem. But most of the lake's communities draw water four or five miles from shore. Offshore pollution has not increased as dramatically as it has along the algae-crusted beaches, Eagle said.

One Lake Erie community, Put-In-Bay, was advised by state health officials to begin boiling its drinking water in mid-July after Eagle's technicians found bacteria counts dangerously high.

The island resort, with a population of 400 that swells to several thousand on summer weekends, has a water treatment plant that is inadequate for coping with the lake's pollution.

Another Ohio community batting pollution is Massillon, whose water supply is slowly going salty. The battle may cost Barberton, 15 miles upstream, a $100 million industry with 2,000 employees.

The state has given the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. until 1972 to bring its pollution under control. The company says modifying the plant is too expensive and this has raised the possibility it would be closed.

Suburban sprawl and housing developments with limited sewage treatment facilities can also be a problem, as Newark learned in July when a small sewage plant serving 120 suburban homes broke down spilling 40,000 gallons of raw sewage into the city's water supply. The city added chemicals to make the polluted water safe.

"The entire waterworks industry has the same problem," said Galen Gault, Newark water superintendent who also heads the 1,000-member Ohio section of the American Waterworks Association.

The problem, he explained, is that construction in the watersheds above Ohio's cities is polluting water supplies.

He said septic tanks and improperly operated "package" (pre-fabricated) sewage plants are the main sources of pollution.

Eagle said there are several thousand "package" treatment plants in the state, serving housing projects, trailer parks, shopping centers, schools and industry that are too far from central cities to tap municipal systems.

Eagle admitted that many are "inadequate" or have "incompetent operators."

Ohio tightened its control over "package" plants last year by requiring any new plants to be operated by a municipal or county government or a private utility company recognized by the state.

The new controls do not apply to plants already in operation.

Body Of Prof Is Recovered

JACKSON, Wyo. (AP) — The body of a University of Cincinnati Medical School professor has been recovered from a sandbar on the Snake River where he drowned Wednesday in a fishing accident.

A group of scouts found the body Thursday of Morton Hamburger, 62, of Cincinnati, a Grand Teton National Park ranger said.

Hamburger's wife Virginia said that her husband was fishing when he slipped and water filled his waist-high boots, pulling him underwater.

Davis Mum On Plans For Future

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Former Cleveland Safety Director Benjamin O. Davis Jr. appeared in no hurry to make any political decisions Thursday as Republicans and Democrats sounded out the general's feelings about running for mayor of Cleveland.

Cuyahoga County Democratic Party Chairman Joseph Bartunek met with Davis earlier in the day and after the meeting said the party would support incumbent Mayor Carl B. Stokes if he seeks re-election in 1971.

County Republican Co-chairmen Robert Hughes and Saul G. Stillman said after a later meeting with Davis that the general had not precluded the possibility of running for mayor but did not want to make an immediate decision.

Davis, 57-year-old retired Air Force lieutenant general who was the highest ranking Negro in the U.S. military, was not available for comment. His wife said Davis did not want to talk with newsmen and would not be in Cleveland much during August because he would be working on President Nixon's Commission on Campus Unrest.

Davis quit Monday as safety director, charging that Stokes was providing support for "enemies of law enforcement." Davis did not publicly name the enemies, but Stokes discussed them at a subsequent news conference.

James Magas, president of the Cleveland Patrolmen's Association, said the association's executive committee met Thursday and voted unanimously to offer Davis a $17,500-a-year position as an advisor. Magas said he would talk with Davis in the next couple of days.

U.S. Embassy Official Kidnaped

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — A U.S. Embassy official was kidnaped today by left-wing urban guerrillas. They also attempted to kidnap two other U.S. Embassy officers, but failed, an embassy spokesman said.

Police reported the Brazilian consul, Aloisi Comitti, was kidnaped by the Tupamaro guerrilla organization moments after five terrorists seized Dan A. Mitrone, 50, a public safety adviser from Indiana. Mitrone is attached to the Agency for International Development.

Police reported Mitrone was found, apparently wounded, an hour later, in a Montevideo suburb. But a U.S. Embassy spokesman said he knew nothing about Mitrone having been found.

An Embassy spokesman said terrorists failed in an attempt this morning to kidnap Gordon Jones, the Embassy's second secretary, and Nathan Rosenfeld, cultural affairs officer.

By GEORGE DELL
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Municipal water systems in Ohio have to work harder today to keep pollution out of drinking water.

They are succeeding very well according to George Eagle, chief of the Ohio Department of Health's Bureau of Environmental Health.

Eagle said the rising pollution of surface water, and to some extent in ground water, is being met with increased efforts to purify water pumped by the 720 municipal water systems in Ohio.

He said a major problem now is that treatment against pollution some times makes water taste odd.

"We have better quality water today than ever," he said. "The quality standards are under constant review. There is a continuing effort to reduce the bacteria content."

Public water systems in Ohio pump well over one billion gallons of water every day, about 25 per cent of it going for industrial purposes. The figures do not include private water systems.

Eagle's office is charged with helping local water plants keep a constant check on the safety of water. He has a staff of 170 technicians, engineers and office workers to do this.

If pollution appears in a municipal water supply Eagle's bureau is in position to act quickly. Only recently, he cautioned residents of one community they should boil drinking water.

Eagle's staff works with the U.S. Geological Survey, checking a network of 50 machines which constantly monitor water quality in state streams. His engineers review plans for new sewage treatment facilities.

Eagle cites the Ohio River as proof of his claim that things are getting better. Today, he says, more than 99 per cent of the communities and industry bordering the river treat their sewage to some degree. Forty years ago sewage treatment there was virtually "non-existent."

During a drought in the 1930's stagnant water pooled behind the Ohio's low dams turning the river into a "series of septic tanks." Many of those living along the river got sick drinking the water, Eagle said.

The most serious complaint in recent months was last winter when Portsmouth residents complained of a funny taste in the water. It was traced to an industry upstream.

Lake Erie, whose beaches were closed part of the summer because of pollution, poses another problem. But most of the lake's communities draw water four or five miles from shore. Offshore pollution has not increased as dramatically as it has along the algae-crusted beaches, Eagle said.

One Lake Erie community, Put-In-Bay, was advised by state health officials to begin boiling its drinking water in mid-July after Eagle's technicians found bacteria counts dangerously high.

The island resort, with a population of 400 that swells to several thousand on summer weekends, has a water treatment plant that is inadequate for coping with the lake's pollution.

Another Ohio community batting pollution is Massillon, whose water supply is slowly going salty. The battle may cost Barberton, 15 miles upstream, a $100 million industry with 2,000 employees.

The state has given the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. until 1972 to bring its pollution under control. The company says modifying the plant is too expensive and this has raised the possibility it would be closed.

Suburban sprawl and housing developments with limited sewage treatment facilities can also be a problem, as Newark learned in July when a small sewage plant serving 120 suburban homes broke down spl-ling 40,000 gallons of raw sewage into the city's water supply. The city added chemicals to make the polluted water safe.

"The entire waterworks industry has the same problem," said Galen Gault, Newark water superintendent who also heads the 1,000-member Ohio section of the American Waterworks Association.

The problem, he explained, is that construction in the watersheds above Ohio's cities is polluting water supplies.

He said septic tanks and improperly operated "package" (pre-fabricated) sewage plants are the main sources of pollution.

Eagle said there are several thousand "package" treatment plants in the state, serving housing projects, trailer parks, shopping centers, schools and industry that are too far from central cities to tap municipal systems.

Eagle admitted that many are "inadequate" or have "incompetent operators."

Ohio tightened its control over "package" plants last year by requiring any new plants to be operated by a municipal or county government or a private utility company recognized by the state.

The new controls do not apply to plants already in operation.

Body Of Prof Is Recovered

JACKSON, Wyo. (AP) — The body of a University of Cincinnati Medical School professor has been recovered from a sandbar on the Snake River where he drowned Wednesday in a fishing accident.

A group of scouts found the body Thursday of Morton Hamburger, 62, of Cincinnati, a Grand Teton National Park ranger said.

Hamburger's wife Virginia said that her husband was fishing when he slipped and water filled his waist-high boots, pulling him underwater.

Davis Mum On Plans For Future

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Former Cleveland Safety Director Benjamin O. Davis Jr. appeared in no hurry to make any political decisions Thursday as Republicans and Democrats sounded out the general's feelings about running for mayor of Cleveland.

Cuyahoga County Democratic Party Chairman Joseph Bartunek met with Davis earlier in the day and after the meeting said the party would support incumbent Mayor Carl B. Stokes if he seeks re-election in 1971.

County Republican Co-chairmen Robert Hughes and Saul G. Stillman said after a later meeting with Davis that the general had not precluded the possibility of running for mayor but did not want to make an immediate decision.

Davis, 57-year-old retired Air Force lieutenant general who was the highest ranking Negro in the U.S. military, was not available for comment. His wife said Davis did not want to talk with newsmen and would not be in Cleveland much during August because he would be working on President Nixon's Commission on Campus Unrest.

Davis quit Monday as safety director, charging that Stokes was providing support for "enemies of law enforcement." Davis did not publicly name the enemies, but Stokes discussed them at a subsequent news conference.

James Magas, president of the Cleveland Patrolmen's Association, said the association's executive committee met Thursday and voted unanimously to offer Davis a $17,500-a-year position as an advisor. Magas said he would talk with Davis in the next couple of days.

One of the positive accomplishments to emerge from the Vietnam War is the improvement in techniques for providing immediate medical aid to those wounded in battle. The evacuation of injured to aid stations and rear echelon hospitals in minutes is the rule rather than the exception.

The rescue helicopter is the principal vehicle which undoubtedly has saved thousands of lives by transporting critically wounded men to expert medical help in double time. Can this technique be used in civilian life to help save lives as well?

That question should be answered in a joint experiment by the Defense and Transportation Departments getting underway in San Antonio. Fifteen Army helicopters are being made available for rescue missions involving automobile accidents in a 10-county area.

Describing the project as "a significant humanitarian effort," Transportation Secretary John Volpe said many of the nearly 60,000 traffic deaths now occurring in the United States each year could be prevented if there were a way of getting the injured to competent medical help in time.

The Texas experiment may point to a significant tool to reduce the toll, if not the number of accidents, on the nation's highways.

Prisoner Issue

A few weeks ago the American and Vietnamese peoples were shocked and embarrassed by the disclosures of two congressmen who visited a prison on Con Son Island and described what they found there. Immediately some critics of the Vietnam venture jumped on the revelation as an example of the untrustworthiness of the South Vietnamese as an ally of the United States.

That was an unfortunate conclusion which did nothing to improve the situation in Vietnam or to expedite the withdrawal of American troops. Saigon did move rapidly to correct conditions on Con Son.

Almost immediately, 50 prisoners were removed to the mainland for release, the "tiger cages" were closed down for renovations to make them more habitable, and the South Vietnamese government has reacted in other ways toward improvement of its prison facilities.

To put the prison situation in focus, what about the prisons in North Vietnam or China or anywhere else behind the bamboo and iron curtains? No one knows what they are like because no one from a free society is permitted behind their doors.

We do know, however, how despicable the treatment accorded Americans who are prisoners of the communists has been, and how reluctant their captors are to make any improvements. Could a little sympathy be found for their plight?

A coalition of feminine equal rights groups plan to observe the 50th anniversary of the 19th Amendment, which granted women the right to vote, by staging a nationwide women's strike on Aug. 26. How's that for a sure-fire Ladies' Day — with a vengeance?

In New York City the feminists plan a City Hall demonstration. The girls should know you can't beat City Hall — or, er, maybe they can!

The N.Y. equal rights femmes also plan a parade down Fifth Avenue. If, of course, they can get the girls past all those store windows.

If you really want to get to the middle of things you might visit Butte County, South Dakota, which is the geographic center of the United States — including Alaska and Hawaii.

Judging by the lowly standings of the Atlanta Braves and the Cleveland baseball teams there won't be any Indian Summer this year.

This is Colorado Day — a holiday in that mountainous state. Should be a high time.

Dock Strike End Voted

LONDON (AP) — Two thousand longshoremen who work the London docks voted Friday to return to work, easing fears militants might block settlement of the British dock strike.

Despite a disgruntled minority, London's dockers accepted the recommendation of their shop stewards at an open air meeting. The vote was not announced.

Only Liverpool, which with London handles more than half of Britain's seaborne trade, and Manchester remained unaccounted among the major ports.

Dockers at Manchester meet later today and at Liverpool Friday.

Work on the piers is scheduled to resume Monday, but at some British ports the longshoremen already have gone back to unload food and other critical cargo.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A FUSSY customer in a roadside restaurant took a tentative bite of the piece of pie that had been set before him, grimaced, then snarled at the waiter, "Are you sure this is cherry pie?"

"What does it taste like?" snapped the waiter, obviously nettled. "Heaven only knows," the customer shrugged. The waiter had the last word. "If you don't know what it tastes like," he reasoned, "what difference does it make whether it's cherry or not?"

Fearless Bill Alsop, Jr. has the audacity to send the following from his ivory tower in Granby, Connecticut:

"In sub-zero weather a poet had just finished composing a fourteen-line Shakespearean stanza when a sudden gust of wind came through a chink in a window and blew the script on the floor near the fireplace. There, naturally, a down-draft from the chimney (1) dirtied it and (2) a pet pair of black African monkeys (where did THEY come from?) leaped upon it.

That's when a friend made his entrance and exclaimed, "Now look what you've got! Soot on your cold day sonnet with the two gibbons on it."

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

An oral contraceptive pill for the male has been under study for a long time. A number of them have been developed that have promise.

At the Unit of Reproductive Biology in Liverpool, England, a new chemical, chloropropanediol, seems to have accomplished this purpose in experimental animals. Sperm has been made infertile and therefore the drug may be the forerunner of safer ones for humans.

At the present time, this drug cannot be used in humans because of its risky side effects.

As always, a new light on the horizon leads to further expansion of scientific work and almost inevitably leads to the goal that is hoped for.

Dr. Timothy Glover believes that the preliminary studies are encouraging and will, of course, pursue them.

The ideal male contraceptive pill that is being sought is one whose effects are reliable and can be reversed if children are later to be part of the family program.

The present method of vasectomy is a simple, painless and easily performed operation to make a man infertile. Unfortunately, this slight operation is highly difficult to undo because the vast deferens, which is the tube that carried the male sperm, cannot be reopened too successfully.

An old idea has been revived which may be of great importance for people who need transfusions after surgery. Many years ago, it was suggested that blood should be taken from a patient before an operation and used if necessary afterwards as a transfusion if required.

Of course, not all patients are in good enough shape to spare their blood at that time. Yet this procedure is used by Dr. Hiram T. Langston and his associates in his program at the Augustana Hospital in Chicago.

They believe that there is great value in this type of autotransfusion because it eliminates many of the side reactions that can accompany transfusions with blood from another human being. It also reduces the possibility of the complication of hepatitis that sometimes follows transfusion.

It is not commonly known that when blood is removed from anyone it quickly stimulates the blood-forming

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — The unexpectedly sharp rise in the wholesale price index for July was like a sudden summer shower on a day the weatherman had promised would be fair. A lot of people were caught with their umbrellas down.

A few days earlier, administration officials had pointed to a basketful of statistics that, they said, indicated the economy was returning to stability again, and that a less inflationary upturn could be expected soon.

If figures could throw cold water on opinions they would, but their mute testimony is devastating enough. In July, the Labor Department said, wholesale prices rose at a 6 per cent annual rate.

It was a slowdown in the increase of wholesale prices that had led the administration to be optimistic. For two months before July the rate of increase was only 2.4 per cent. And the worst seemed to have been reached way back in January. The sudden increase, therefore, was shocking.

Generally speaking, wholesale prices work their way down through the economy like water through a sponge, being absorbed to some extent until they spill out over retail markets weeks and months later.

True, some of the present rise might be absorbed before it reaches the consumer, but don't bet on it. Business is complaining about lagging profits and isn't in a mood to take on added costs. Quite likely they'll pass them on.

One outside possibility still exists that the situation might not be really so bad as portrayed by the wholesale price index. That is, the fluctuation could be a fluke. Perhaps the index is inaccurate.

That, at least, is the belief of George Stigler of the University of Chicago, who co-authored with James Kindahl of the University of Massachusetts a book that is highly critical of the government's methods of compiling prices.

Says Stigler, "I am absolutely confident that there has been extensive price cutting during the slowdown of the past six to eight months; but these cuts have not showed up in the government's WPI."

In their book, "The Behavior of Industrial Prices," the authors contend that price cuts have been made right under the noses of researchers but have been ignored.

The WPI, for example, uses in its compilations the prices that sellers list in their catalogs, taking into account only standard discounts.

Stigler and Kindahl contend that many buyers today are actually paying much less than listed prices because of special discounts, tie-in sales, introductory offers, shipping concessions and so on.

Regardless of which is the more accurate measure, the WPI as compiled by the government, or the buyers' price index as proposed by Stigler and Kindahl, price action in the next few months is going to tell a big story.

If wholesale prices continue to rise then there is little possibility of consumer inflation being dramatically reduced in the next few months. It might take a lot longer than was originally anticipated.

BROTHERS NOW SISTERS—Operations at the University of Minnesota transformed these two former half-brothers into sisters, according to a St. Paul, Minn., newspaper which published this photo of them in their St. Paul apartment. Marine Killed In Air Crash

EL TORO MARINE AIR STATION, Calif. (AP) — A giant air tanker that crashed and burned here killed one Marine flier, critically injured four others and hurled flaming wreckage within 50 yards of President Nixon's unoccupied Air Force One, military spokesmen said today.

The KC130 tanker, assigned to El Toro, was making a practice landing when it cartwheeled into the ground and exploded Thursday, officials said.

President Nixon's big jetliner was parked on an apron adjacent to the runway, officials said.

They are part of a Movieland Glamorama show organized by two veteran Hollywood showmen, Al Rogell and Art Arthur.

Housed in two large trailers, the exhibit will tour state fairs and other events.

A mong the other MGM memories: miniature British bombers from "Mrs. Miniver," MIGs from "Ice Station Zebra," Chinese junks from "Malaya."

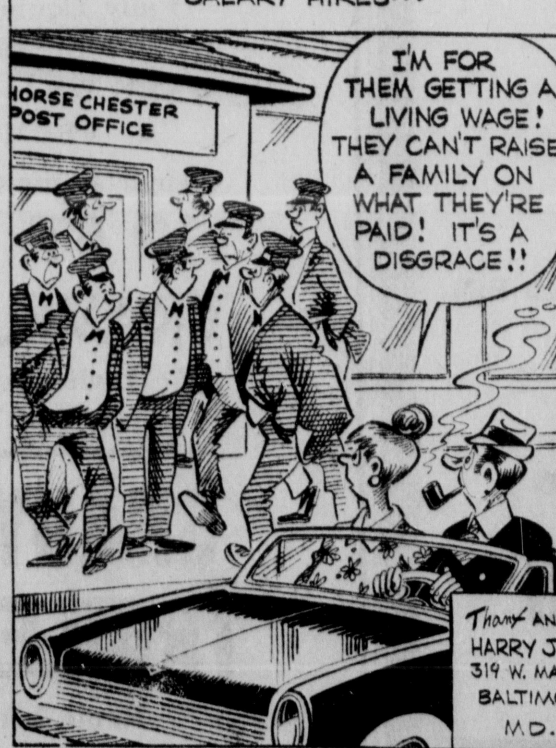

Another traveling exhibit has been organized as the Movie Museum. Four trailers will house a wealth of film props, from statuary of "Ben-Hur" to the time machine from "The Time Machine."

Debbie Reynolds an old MGM hand, did some spirited bidding at the auction. "I think at least some of these fine old things ought to stay in Hollywood to benefit the industry," she argued.

She got backing for $100,000 worth of goods to open a museum in the Garden Court Apartments, near Grauman's Chinese Theater on Hollywood Boulevard. Museum proceeds will be earmarked for the Motion Picture and Television Relief Fund, the industry's chief charity.

Highway Airlift

One of the positive accomplishments to emerge from the Vietnam War is the improvement in techniques for providing immediate medical aid to those wounded in battle. The evacuation of injured to aid stations and rear echelon hospitals in minutes is the rule rather than the exception.

The rescue helicopter is the principal vehicle which undoubtedly has saved thousands of lives by transporting critically wounded men to expert medical help in double time. Can this technique be used in civilian life to help save lives as well?

That question should be answered in a joint experiment by the Defense and Transportation Departments getting underway in San Antonio. Fifteen Army helicopters are being made available for rescue missions involving automobile accidents in a 10-county area.

Describing the project as "a significant humanitarian effort," Transportation Secretary John Volpe said many of the nearly 60,000 traffic deaths now occurring in the United States each year could be prevented if there were a way of getting the injured to competent medical help in time.

The Texas experiment may point to a significant tool to reduce the toll, if not the number of accidents, on the nation's highways.

Prisoner Issue

A few weeks ago the American and Vietnamese peoples were shocked and embarrassed by the disclosures of two congressmen who visited a prison on Con Son Island and described what they found there. Immediately some critics of the Vietnam venture jumped on the revelation as an example of the untrustworthiness of the South Vietnamese as an ally of the United States.

That was an unfortunate conclusion which did nothing to improve the situation in Vietnam or to expedite the withdrawal of American troops. Saigon did move rapidly to correct conditions on Con Son.

Almost immediately, 50 prisoners were removed to the mainland for release, the "tiger cages" were closed down for renovations to make them more habitable, and the South Vietnamese government has reacted in other ways toward improvement of its prison facilities.

To put the prison situation in focus, what about the prisons in North Vietnam or China or anywhere else behind the bamboo and iron curtains? No one knows what they are like because no one from a free society is permitted behind their doors.

We do know, however, how despicable the treatment accorded Americans who are prisoners of the communists has been, and how reluctant their captors are to make any improvements. Could a little sympathy be found for their plight?

A coalition of feminine equal rights groups plan to observe the 50th anniversary of the 19th Amendment, which granted women the right to vote, by staging a nationwide women's strike on Aug. 26. How's that for a sure-fire Ladies' Day — with a vengeance?

In New York City the feminists plan a City Hall demonstration. The girls should know you can't beat City Hall — or, er, maybe they can!

The N.Y. equal rights femmes also plan a parade down Fifth Avenue. If, of course, they can get the girls past all those store windows.

If you really want to get to the middle of things you might visit Butte County, South Dakota, which is the geographic center of the United States — including Alaska and Hawaii.

Judging by the lowly standings of the Atlanta Braves and the Cleveland baseball teams there won't be any Indian Summer this year.

This is Colorado Day — a holiday in that mountainous state. Should be a high time.

Grandpappy Jenkins says he thinks he's figured out why so many people are always trying to climb mountains. It's because, says Gramps, they're just trying to show that, physically, they are at their peak.

Dock Strike End Voted

LONDON (AP) — Two thousand longshoremen who work the London docks voted Friday to return to work, easing fears militants might block shipping of the British dock strike.

Despite a disgruntled minority, London's dockers accepted the recommendation of their shop stewards at an open air meeting. The vote was not announced.

Only Liverpool, which with London handles more than half of Britain's seaborne trade, and Manchester remained uncounted among the major ports.

Dockers at Manchester meet later today and at Liverpool Friday.

Work on the piers is scheduled to resume Monday, but at some British ports the longshoremen already have gone back to unload food and other critical cargo.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A FUSSY customer in a roadside restaurant took a tentative bite of the piece of pie that had been set before him, grimaced, then snarled at the waiter, "Are you sure this is cherry pie?" "What does it taste like?" snapped the waiter, obviously nettled. "Heaven only knows," the customer shrugged. The waiter had the last word. "If you don't know what it tastes like," he reasoned, "what difference does it make whether it's cherry or not?"

Fearless Bill Alsop, Jr. has the audacity to send the following from his ivory tower in Granby, Connecticut:

"In sub-zero weather a poet had just finished composing a fourteen-line Shakespearean stanza when a sudden gust of wind came through a chink in a window and blew the script on the floor near the fireplace. There, naturally, a down-draft from the chimney (1) dirtied it and (2) a pet pair of black African monkeys (where did THEY come from?) leaped upon it."

That's when a friend made his entrance and exclaimed, "Now look what you've got! Soot on your cold day sonnet with the two gibbons on it."

Len Dawson says there's so much pollution in the air these days that people are coughing even when they're not at a concert or a play.

Another Dawson observation: Nothing cures insomnia like a realization it's time to get up.

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

An oral contraceptive pill for the male has been under study for a long time. A number of them have been developed that have promise.

At the Unit of Reproductive Biology in Liverpool, England, a new chemical, chloropropanediol, seems to have accomplished this purpose in experimental animals. Sperm has been made infertile and therefore the drug may be the forerunner of safer ones for humans.

At the present time, this drug cannot be used in humans because of its risky side effects. As always, a new light on the horizon leads to further expansion of scientific work and almost inevitably leads to the goal that is hoped for.

Dr. Timothy Glover believes that the preliminary studies are encouraging and will, of course, pursue them.

The ideal male contraceptive pill that is being sought is one whose effects are reliable and can be reversed if children are later to be part of the family program.

The present method of vasectomy is a simple, painless and easily performed operation to make a man infertile. Unfortunately, this slight operation is highly difficult to undo because the vast defenses, which is the tube that carried the male sperm, cannot be reopened too successfully.

An old idea has been revived which may be of great importance for people who need transfusions after surgery. Many years ago, it was suggested that blood should be taken from a patient before an operation and used if necessary afterwards as a transfusion if required.

Of course, not all patients are in good enough shape to spare their blood at that time. Yet this procedure is used by Dr. Hiram T. Langston and his associates in his program at the Augustana Hospital in Chicago.

They believe that there is great value in this type of autotransfusion because it eliminates many of the side reactions that can accompany transfusions with blood from another human being. It also reduces the possibility of the complication of hepatitis that sometimes follows transfusion.

It is not commonly known that when blood is removed from anyone it quickly stimulates the blood-forming

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — The unexpectedly sharp rise in the wholesale price index for July was like a sudden summer shower on a day the weatherman had promised would be fair. A lot of people were caught with their umbrellas down.

A few days earlier, administration officials had pointed to a basketful of statistics that, they said, indicated the economy was returning to stability again, and that a less inflationary upturn could be expected soon.

If figures could throw cold water on opinions they would, but their mute testimony is devastating enough. In July, the Labor Department said, wholesale prices rose at a 6 per cent annual rate.

It was a slowdown in the increase of wholesale prices that had led the administration to be optimistic. For two months before July the rate of increase was only 2.4 per cent. And the worst seemed to have been reached way back in January. The sudden increase, therefore, was shocking.

Generally speaking, wholesale prices work their way down through the economy like water through a sponge, being absorbed to some extent until they spill out over retail markets weeks and months later.

True, some of the present rise might be absorbed before it reaches the consumer, but don't bet on it. Business is complaining about lagging profits and isn't in a mood to take on added costs. Quite likely they'll pass them on.

One outside possibility still exists that the situation might not be really so bad as portrayed by the wholesale price index. That is, the fluctuation could be a fluke. Perhaps the index is inaccurate.

That, at least, is the belief of George Stigler of the University of Chicago, who co-authored with James Kindahl of the University of Massachusetts a book that is highly critical of the government's methods of compiling prices.

Says Stigler, "I am absolutely confident that there has been extensive price cutting during the slowdown of the past six to eight months; but these cuts have not showed up in the government's WPI."

In their book, "The Behavior of Industrial Prices," the authors contend that price cuts have been made right under the noses of researchers but have been ignored.

The WPI, for example, uses in its compilations the prices that sellers list in their catalogs, taking into account only standard discounts.

Stigler and Kindahl contend that many buyers today are actually paying much less than listed prices because of special discounts, tie-in sales, introductory offers, shipping concessions and so on.

Regardless of which is the more accurate measure, the WPI as compiled by the government, or the buyers' price index as proposed by Stigler and Kindahl, price action in the next few months is going to tell a big story.

If wholesale prices continue to rise then there is little possibility of consumer inflation being dramatically reduced in the next few months. It might take a lot longer than was originally anticipated.

BROTHERS NOW SISTERS—Operations at the University of Minnesota transformed these two former half-brothers into sisters, according to a St. Paul, Minn., newspaper which published this photo of them in their St. Paul apartment. Cary underwent the operation two years ago and became blonde Lenette, 28. Six months later Burt underwent the operation and became brunette Lauraine, 22. No last name given.

Marine Killed In Air Crash

EL TORO MARINE AIR STATION, Calif. (AP) — A giant air tanker that crashed and burned here killed one Marine flier, critically injured four others and hurled flaming wreckage within 50 yards of President Nixon's unoccupied Air Force One, military spokesmen said today.

The KC130 tanker, assigned to El Toro, was making a practice landing when it cartwheeled into the ground and exploded Thursday, officials said.

President Nixon's big jetliner was parked on an apron adjacent to the runway, officials said.

Dear Abby: A Happy Worker Is A Good Worker

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband is occasionally sent out of town overnight on business. Usually a man from the company is sent with him, but recently his boss has been assigning a lady to go along. John does not care for this arrangement, and needless to say, I am not jazzed about it either.

On John's last out-of-town trip he was having dinner with the woman who was assigned to him, which was perfectly innocent, and not unnatural, since they were working together. Well, John said he saw a neighbor of ours, and this neighbor pretended not to see John—as if to avoid an "embarrassing" encounter. This made John very uncomfortable.

Abby, we have three children and have been happily married for 20 years, and I'd like to keep it that way, so will you please say a few words to employers who put employees in an unfair position? Not to mention upsetting their spouses.

SPOUSE
DEAR SPOUSE: You have said it very well. A smart employer makes a conscious effort to keep the "spouse" happy, because an unhappy spouse makes her spouse miserable and a miserable employee isn't apt to be very productive.

DEAR ABBY: I was widowed two years ago and have been a "good boy" all this time. A friend of mine wanted me to meet a woman for some pleasure so he told me about a doll he knew and arranged for her to visit me at a local hotel.

At the appointed time, there was a knock on the door, and when I opened it, there stood a young woman who was the daughter of a friend of mine. I've known this girl since she was 5 years old. She was as surprised as I, I merely told her a mistake had been made, and sent her on her way. I've always thought this girl to be a lovely young lady. She holds a good secretarial job. I will not, of course mention this to her parents, but I wonder how she can face me when I visit her house to see her parents?

BEWILDERED
DEAR BEWILDERED: That will be her problem. And in the future, either arrange your own dates or ask in advance with whom you will be having the pleasure.

DEAR ABBY: As a former mental patient, may I ask a favor of you? Please tell your vast reading audience that if they have a friend or relative in a mental hospital, they can help that person to get well faster by writing to them as often as they can.

Every day is like a year to one who is in a hospital, and a letter from "home" is often carried around in a purse or a pocket for months to be read and reread.

I was lucky. I had a devoted cousin who wrote to me nearly every day. (Even on her honeymoon—God bless her!)

HOME AND HAPPY
DEAR HOME: Mail is a great morale booster. Not only to patients in mental hospitals, but patients in any kind of hospital, sanitarium, or home for the elderly. And let's not forget our wonderful men and women in the service!

CONFIDENTIAL TO DAVID: If you have any doubts about the woman, ask her to sign a prenuptial agreement. A smart lady can marry more money in 5 minutes than a smart man can earn in a lifetime.

Have plenty of food (a wiener roast), music hot, loud, louder, loudest, the weather balmy with a full moon and the ingredients for a swinging party of teenagers is in the making and that's how it was last Saturday night when Kathy Logan entertained at her home assisted by her parents Mr. and Mrs. Mearl Logan and Mrs. John Graffis, Jr.

Making merry were: Tanis Galloway, Becki Easterday, Mike (Ahhh!) Martin, Rae Fenstermaker, Rick Metzger, George Hastings, Jill Long, Jan Long, Chuck Graffis, Kelly Steinhauer, Chris Hansen, Linda Drummond, Kay Hooks, Milton Emerine, Steve Wynn, Nancy Dean, Nancy Mace, Jeff Skinner, Terry Newlon, Jay Clark, "Littlejohn Graffis," the "kid" brothers Mearl, Jr. and Tommy Logan, Teresa Graffis, Julia and Paul Russell. Unable to make the scene were Debbie Hulse, Judy Wright, Melanie Van Gundy, Nancy Lahmer and Jerri Henson.

Another social note from the Logan household is the word that Kathy was the Tuesday overnight guest of Rae Fenstermaker and "Doc" and Irma.

This 'N That
Bill and Marcia Horch and their Kenny and Sheryl were pleased to offer the hospitality of their home to good friends Mike and Janet Kindreds and children Chrissy and Mike of Coventry, Conn. for a visit last week. The Kindreds had been on a camping trip west and were heading for the Air Force Museum at Dayton and then home. Mike and Bill were buddies in the Air Force when each did his "turn." Next week we can report on more "Easterners" visiting the Horch household since Marcia's two sisters are expected in this weekend.

It must be the thing to visit former service buddies because that is also what Jim and Karen Dean and their "doltier" Michelle did on vacation last week, too. They motored down to Fayetteville, N.C. for a happy reunion with Jim Martindale and his spouse the former Barb Duddleson and their Tace. On the return home they came through the beautiful Smokies. Karen is busily getting everything dusted for the Lanman family reunion to be held at their home this Sunday.

The new in-laws Lawrence and Dorothy Carle (they just acquired a new son-in-law) with Martha, Randy and Tom were with Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Bumgarner of Ashville, Sunday for a farewell dinner in Tom's honor. He will leave Friday to begin studies at the Pittsburgh Institute of Aeronautical Engineering. This is following in big brother Dave's footsteps. At the moment Dave is at a camp in Michigan for further specialized training and then will return to his Wright Patterson base. Also present at the dinner were Mrs. Carl (a summer softball "widow") Bumgarner and her family.

Mrs. Joe (Janie) Cottrill and

Cheryl really had a groovy time when they went down to Cincinnati Gardens to see the Tom Jones Show. They claim they did not sit in the golden circle (the occupants of these seats throw a very personal piece of under clothing on stage at the performer). Well, as they say, only they know for sure.

Mrs. Mike (Marsha) McCafferty and her K-lovelies, Kelly, Kim and Kathy have returned home from a marvelous week of visiting with grandma and grandpa Mr. and Mrs. George Wharton and Aunt Judy of Columbus.

Miss Patty Williams of Columbus has been visiting with her cousins David and Marabel Drummond, Connie, Sandee and Joy Lynn. On Monday evening they all enjoyed the Fayette County fair and earlier on Sunday they had been a part of the Clarksburg Swine, Sheep and Steer 4-H Clubs picnic held at Gold Cliff park.

A call to the United Methodist parsonage on a matter gave me the opportunity to chat with delightful, perky teen-ager Laurie Bashforth who is Rev. Ed Linville's niece from Elizabeth, Pa. She is here for several weeks visit with uncle, Aunt Glyn and cousins Stephen, Eddie and Philip. She has the most beautiful infectious laugh! (I was not an English major).

Wendell and Mildred Carroll and Sue Ann of Clarksburg spent time Tuesday with her father A. J. Cook, who was celebrating his birthday, and his mate Juanita and Shana Wills. The Cooks flowers are gorgeous this year, as usual.

The past several years have found a group of folks getting together for a fish fry and last Saturday night so it was at Dick and Janice Barton's and sons at their farm near Bloomingburg. Those locally enjoying the fish fry were Mr. and Mrs. Everett Moore (who really started the whole shebang a long time ago at their home) Lester and Wilmina Wolford, Paul and Jane Moore (from Monroe Twp.) and scads of folks from the Washington C. H. area.

Jane Moore tells me son Jack (a star Westfall baseball player in his day; is on his way to Da Nang, Vietnam and that of course brings the element of anxiety into their days. His new address is: John P. Moore, H S Co., 1st MED BN, Mess Hall, F.P.O. 96602 San Francisco. Let's hope his many friends here at home will drop him a few words of encouragement.

Barbara Lanman is a cute chick who is not about to miss out on the action and this past weekend the action was the Derby homecoming so she was the guest of her good friend Donna Musselman of Derby from Friday until Sunday. I spotted a number of other localities there Saturday who had gone for the same reason I did — to transport Westfall band members and watch the parade. It was a very nice parade, too.

While we were in Derby I took the opportunity to stop by and have a quick chat with Jody (Mrs. Kerwin) Durlinger who was my Crew Leader during the recent "controversial" census. A really great gal and may all the folks I meet in my lifetime be as nice.

Jimmie Porter has returned to his Columbus home after an extended visit with Auntie Sue and Uncle John Graffis, Teresa, Chuck and Littlejohn. Susie Welch of Jackson Twp. spent a few days visiting with her school chum Teresa.

Roy and Kathryn Brayshaw of New Brighton, Pennsylvania breezed into town over the weekend for a visit with Pete and Pearl Cochenour and to take dear Grandma B. (Agnes Brayshaw) back with them for a few weeks "fat chewing" with old and close friends and relatives. Grandma spent many years in that area before making her home here.

Other recent visitors of the Cochenours were Bill and Vallie Long and their Becky, Jackie, Brett and Jeff of Darrtown.

Paul Huff had the misfortune to suffer a "freak" accident at work the other day and the result has been an extremely painful and stiff neck.

Jack and Juanita Hanson, Christy and Terry took advantage of vacation time and drove down to North Carolina for a visit with relatives.

Also vacationing in the North Carolina territory were Faye Hollis and her sister Mrs. Bob (Betty) Boggs of Middletown. They took a "gypsy" type vacation. That's the kind where you have no specific destination.

Just go where the whim dictates. Their whims took them through West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee and Kentucky. They used all secondary roads and according to F saw some breathtaking scenery. Back in our village for a brief stay and then off to Chicago they went to visit their nephew Robert Stonerock and his family for a few days.

It could be called Ohioans week in the sunny south since even yet another carload were in North Carolina on through to Florence, S. C. and beyond to the delights of Myrtle Beach. This was none other than Edna (Mrs. John) West, her sister Nannie Wright and hang on to your hats, Mary Alice Greenwood who never takes a plain old vacation. It always has to be connected with her Deca duties or business but faith and begorra (a shock brings out the Irish in me) I could hardly believe my eyes when I received a card from her. They had gone down to "deposit" the West grandchildren Lisa, Craig and Brian Lovenshimer with parents Jack and Jeanette at Florence. It will be a mighty quiet place at the West's since the grandkiddies have been here several weeks.

We are happy to report that Mr. Willard Seymour who underwent major surgery at Riverside Methodist Hospital at Columbus is recuperating and is now at his village home.

The popular Junior High math teacher, Robert Miller is home for a breather after several trips already this summer. He and his beauties, Connie, Cathy and Cheryl have spent time at his parents home in Fairmont, W. Va. and this past week he accompanied his brother "Pete" Miller to Madison, Wis. for a reunion with Pete's World War II service buddies.

Congratulations to our own George and Janie Hamman and the handsome Hammans' Tom, Andy and Bill who were chosen the Pickaway County Dispatch Blue Ribbon farm family.

Dear Abby: A Happy Worker Is A Good Worker

DEAR ABBY: My husband is occasionally sent out of town overnight on business. Usually a man from the company is sent with him, but recently his boss has been assigning a lady to go along. John does not care for this arrangement, and needless to say, I am not jazzed about it either.

On John's last out-of-town trip he was having dinner with the woman who was assigned to him, which was perfectly innocent, and not unnatural, since they were working together. Well, John said he saw a neighbor of ours, and this neighbor pretended not to see John—as if to avoid an "embarrassing" encounter. This made John very uncomfortable.

Abby, we have three children and have been happily married for 20 years, and I'd like to keep it that way, so will you please say a few words to employers who put employees in an unfair position? Not to mention upsetting their spouses.

SPOUSE DEAR SPOUSE: You have said it very well. A smart employer makes a conscious effort to keep the 'spouse' happy, because an unhappy spouse makes her spouse miserable and a miserable employee isn't apt to be very productive.

DEAR ABBY: I was widowed two years ago and have been a 'good boy' all this time. A friend of mine wanted me to meet a woman for some pleasure so he told me about a doll he knew and arranged for her to visit me at a local hotel.

At the appointed time, there was a knock on the door, and when I opened it, there stood a young woman who was the daughter of a friend of mine. I've known this girl since she was 5 years old. She was as surprised as I, I merely told her a mistake had been made, and sent her on her way. I've always thought this girl to be a lovely young lady. She holds a good secretarial job. I will not, of course mention this to her parents, but I wonder how she can face me when I visit her house to see her parents?

BEWILDERED DEAR BEWILDERED: That will be her problem. And in the future, either arrange your own dates or ask in advance with whom you will be having the pleasure.

DEAR ABBY: As a former mental patient, may I ask a favor of you? Please tell your vast reading audience that if they have a friend or relative in a mental hospital, they can help that person to get well faster by writing to them as often as they can.

Every day is like a year to one who is in a hospital, and a letter from 'home' is often carried around in a purse or a pocket for months to be read and reread.

I was lucky. I had a devoted cousin who wrote to me nearly every day. (Even on her honeymoon—God bless her!)

HOME AND HAPPY DEAR HOME: Mail is a great morale booster. Not only to patients in mental hospitals, but patients in any kind of hospital, sanitarium, or home for the elderly. And let's not forget our wonderful men and women in the service!

CONFIDENTIAL TO DAVID: If you have any doubts about the woman, ask her to sign a prenuptial agreement. A smart lady can marry more money in 5 minutes than a smart man can earn in a lifetime.

By EILEEN EASTERDAY — Phone 986-3481

Have plenty of food (a wiener roast), music hot, loud, louder, loudest, the weather balmy with a full moon and the ingredients for a swinging party of teenagers is in the making and that's how it was last Saturday night when Kathy Logan entertained at her home assisted by her parents Mr. and Mrs. Mearl Logan and Mrs. John Graffis, Jr.

Making merry were: Tanis Galloway, Becki Easterday, Mike (Abby!) Martin, Rae Fenstermaker, Rick Metzger, George Hastings, Jill Long, Jan Long, Chuck Graffis, Kelly Steinhauser, Chris Hansen, Linda Drummond, Kay Hooks, Milton Emerine, Steve Wynn, Nancy Dean, Nancy Mace, Jeff Skinner, Terry Newlon, Jay Clark, "Littlejohn Graffis," the "kid" brothers Mearl, Jr. and Tommy Logan, Teresa Graffis, Julia and Paul Russell. Unable to make the scene were Debbie Hulse, Judy Wright, Melanie Van Gundy, Nancy Lahmer and Jerri Henson.

Another social note from the Logan household is the word that Kathy was the Tuesday overnight guest of Rae Fenstermaker and "Doc" and Irma.

This 'N That Bill and Marcia Horsch and their Kenny and Cheryl were pleased to offer the hospitality of their home to good friends Mike and Janet Andrews and children Chrissy and Mike of Coventry, Conn. for a visit last week. The Andrews had been on a camping trip west and were heading for the Air Force Museum at Dayton and then home. Mike and Bill were buddies in the Air Force when each did his "turn." Next week we can report on more "Easterners" visiting the Horsch household since Marcia's two sisters are expected in this weekend.

It must be the thing to visit former service buddies because that is also what Jim and Karen Dean and their "doltier" Michelle did on vacation last week, too. They motored down to Fayetteville, N.C. for a happy reunion with Jim Martindale and his spouse the former Barb Duddleson and their Tace. On the return home they came through the beautiful Smokies. Karen is busily getting everything dusted for the Lanman family reunion to be held at their home this Sunday.

The new in-laws Lawrence and Dorothy Carle (they just acquired a new son-in-law) with Martha, Randy and Tom were with Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Bumgarner of Ashville, Sunday for a farewell dinner in Tom's honor. He will leave Friday to begin studies at the Pittsburgh Institute of Aeronautical Engineering. This is following in big brother Dave's footsteps. At the moment Dave is at a camp in Michigan for further specialized training and then will return to his Wright Patterson base. Also present at the dinner were Mrs. Carl (a summer softball "widow") Bumgarner and her family.

Mrs. Joe (Janie) Cottrill and

Cheryl really had a groovy time when they went down to Cincinnati Gardens to see the Tom Jones Show. They claim they did not sit in the golden circle (the occupants of these seats throw a very personal piece of under clothing on stage at the performer). Well, as they say, only they know for sure.

Mrs. Mike (Marsha) McCafferty and her K-lovelies, Kelly, Kim and Kathy have returned home from a marvelous week of visiting with grandma and grandpa Mr. and Mrs. George Wharton and Aunt Judy of Columbus.

Miss Patty Williams of Columbus has been visiting with her cousins David and Marabel Drummond, Connie, Sandee and Joy Lynn. On Monday evening they all enjoyed the Fayette County fair ad earlier on Sunday they had been a part of the Clarksburg Swine, Sheep and Steer 4-H Clubs picnic held at Gold Cliff park.

A call to the United Methodist parsonage on a matter gave me the opportunity to chat with delightful, perky teen-ager Laurie Bashforth who is Rev. Ed Linville's niece from Elizabeth, Pa. She is here for several weeks visit with uncle, Aunt Glyn and cousins Stephen, Eddie and Philip. She has the most beautiful infectious laugh! (I was not an English major).

Wendell and Mildred Carroll and Sue Ann of Clarksburg spent time Tuesday with her father A. J. Cook, who was celebrating his birthday, and his mate Juanita and Shana Willis. The Cooks flowers are gorgeous this year, as usual.

The past several years have found a group of folks getting together for a fish fry and last Saturday night so it was at Dick and Janice Barton's and sons at their farm near Bloomingburg. Those locally enjoying the fish fry by "master chef" Bill Easterday (my ever-lovin') were Mr. and Mrs. Everett Moore (who really started the whole shebang a long time ago at their home) Lester and Wilmina Wolford, Paul and Jane Moore (from Monroe Twp.) and scads of folks from the Washington C. H. area.

Jane Moore tells me son Jack (a star Westfall baseball player in his day) is on his way to Da Nang, Vietnam and that of course brings the element of anxiety into their days. His new address is: John P. Moore, H S Co., 1st MED BN, Mess Hall, F.P.O. 96602 San Francisco. Let's hope his many friends here at home will drop him a few words of encouragement.

Barbara Lanman is a cute chick who is not about to miss out on the action and this past weekend the action was the Derby homecoming so she was the guest of her good friend Donna Musselman of Derby from Friday until Sunday. I spotted a number of other localities there Saturday who had gone for the same reason I did — to transport Westfall band members and watch the parade. It was a very nice parade, too.

While we were in Derby I took the opportunity to stop by and have a quick chat with Jody (Mrs. Kerwin) Durlinger who was my Crew Leader during the recent "controversial" census. A really great gal and may all the folks I meet in my lifetime be as nice.

Jimmie Porter has returned to his Columbus home after an extended visit with Auntie Sue and Uncle John Graffis, Teresa, Chuck and Littlejohn. Susie Welch of Jackson Twp. spent a few days visiting with her school chum Teresa.

Roy and Kathryn Brayshaw of New Brighton, Pennsylvania breezed into town over the weekend for a visit with Pete and Pearl Cochenour and to take dear Grandma B. (Agnes Brayshaw) back with them for a few weeks "fat chewing" with old and close friends and relatives. Grandma spent many years in that area before making her home here.

Other recent visitors of the Cochenours were Bill and Vallie Long and their Becky, Jackie, Brett and Jeff of Darttown.

Paul Huff had the misfortune to suffer a "freak" accident at work the other day and the result has been an extremely painful and stiff neck.

Jack and Juanita Hanson, Christy and Terry took advantage of vacation time and drove down to North Carolina for a visit with relatives.

Also vacationing in the North Carolina territory were Faye Hollis and her sister Mrs. Bob (Betty) Boggs of Middletown. They took a "gypsy" type vacation. That's the kind where you have no specific destination.

Just go where the whim dictates. Their whims took them through West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee and Kentucky. They used all secondary roads and according to F saw some breathtaking scenery. Back in our village for a brief stay and then off to Chicago they went to visit their nephew Robert Stonerock and his family for a few days.

It could be called Ohioans week in the sunny south since even yet another carload were in North Carolina on through to Florence, S. C. and beyond to the delights of Myrtle Beach. This was none other than Edna (Mrs. John) West, her sister Nannie Wright and hang on to your hats, Mary Alice Greenwood who never takes a plain old vacation. It always has to be connected with her Decca duties or business but faith and doggera (a shock brings out the Irish in me) I could hardly believe my eyes when I received a card from her. They had gone down to "deposit" the West grandchildren Lisa, Craig and Brian Lovenshimer with parents Jack and Jeanette at Florence. It will be a mighty quiet place at the West's since the grandkiddies have been here several weeks.

We are happy to report that Mr. Willard Seymour who underwent major surgery at Riverside Methodist Hospital at Columbus is recuperating and is now at his village home.

The popular Junior High math teacher, Robert Miller is home for a breather after several trips already this summer. He and his beauties, Connie, Cathy and Cheryl have spent time at his parents home in Fairmont, W. Va. and this past week he accompanied his brother "Pete" Miller to Madison, Wis. for a reunion with Pete's World War II service buddies.

Congratulations to our own George and Janie Hamman and the handsome Hamman's Tom, Andy and Bill who were chosen the Pickaway County Dispatch Blue Ribbon farm family.

Gene Grigsby, Jr. has been getting around this summer what with attending the Southeast Region Farm Bureau Youth School held at Otterbein College where they attended seminars on any number of subjects. Mark Schein and Randy Metzger also attended and the boys really "dug" that dorm life. Gene also participated in the 4-H Citizenship Seminar held at Camp Clifton near Springfield. Again also from here were Lynn Marshall, Lee Stevens, Terry and Teddy Rogers, Dave Long and Mike Allen.

Drat it anyway! I wish I could write one column without a goof but I meant to mention that Jane Moore said son Craig was having the time of his young life on a scouting trip in Minnesota that included going into country accessible only by canoe. Dr. H. W. (Bill) Fraas was one of the adults along on the "safari".

Extolling the wonders of a tent camping vacation on the beach of Lake Erie is our Becki who arrived home today with an envious tan. She and her bosom buddies, the John and Martha Beck family (this includes ravishing Ruth, John, Mark and Tom) spent the days "lolling" in the waters of the Lake and strolling the beach and in the evenings taking drives to "sightsee".

Youth Wins
One Penny,
Long Hair

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Perrysburg High School's Colin Cordova has been allowed to return to classes, one penny richer and with shoulder-length hair.

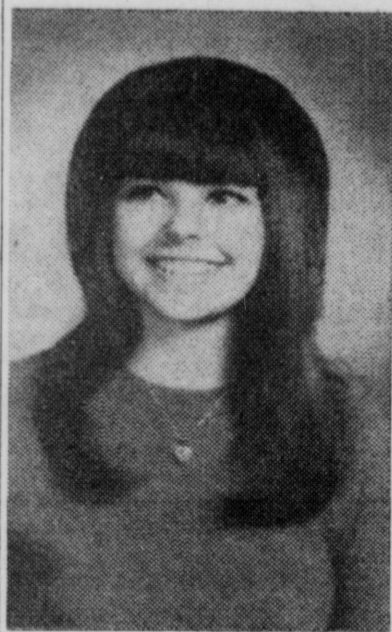

The U.S. District Court in Toledo ruled Friday that Cordova's rights had been violated because high school principal Edward Chonko had suspended him last fall for long hair.

The Court awarded Cordova one cent, $34,999.99 short of the amount sought in the damages suit against the Perrysburg Board of Education, School Supt. Robert Pierson and Chonko.

Judge Don Young said in his ruling, however, that if the "board feels it is essential to the good discipline of the school that a uniform hair style be established, it is free to make such a ruling."

But Young cautioned against "unreasonable arbitrariness" in setting standards.

"Somewhere along the road of these democratic processes," Young said, "good judgment will be exercised to make a dis-

Youth Wins One Penny, Long Hair

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Perrysburg High School's Colin Cordova has been allowed to return to classes, one penny richer and with shoulderlength hair.

The U.S. District Court in Toledo ruled Friday that Cordova's rights had been violated because high school principal Edward Chonko had suspended him last fall for long hair.

The Court awarded Cordova one cent, $34,999.99 short of the amount sought in the damages suit against the Perrysburg Board of Education, School Supt. Robert Pierson and Chonko.

Judge Don Young said in his ruling, however, that if the "board feels it is essential to the good discipline of the school that a uniform hair style be established, it is free to make such a ruling."

But Young cautioned against "unreasonable arbitrariness" in setting standards.

"Somewhere along the road of these democratic processes," Young said, "good judgment will be exercised to make a distinction between internal values, which are important, and external appearances which are not."

Redlegs Drop Two To Aroused Cubs

CINCINNATI (AP) — Bill Hands performed his magic act against Cincinnati again, and his Chicago teammates solved the puzzle of two Reds' pitching aces.
Hands clamped the Reds on five hits and registered his fourth victory without a loss over them this year as he hurled the Cubs to a 7-1 triumph in the opener of a two-night doubleheader Friday. They outsluged Cincinnati in the nightcap 11-7.
Hands, 13-8, did not divulge what his secret has been against the Reds and said, "In the past, I haven't been so effective against them."

Hoyt Wilhelm Saves Braves; Atlanta Trims Bucs, 4-3

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
And now, folks, here he is—drifted from a thousand and one nights in the bullpen... Hoyt Wilhelm!
Yes, he's still doing his relief act at the illogical age of 47.
His sleight-of-hand and bouncing ball trick came in handy again Friday night as he mystified Pittsburgh in the ninth inning and helped Atlanta trim the Bucs, 4-3.
"It's good to start picking up a few saves," said Wilhelm, who collected his third save this week.
Is the work load too much for the flutterball-throwing right arm?
"No, I don't mind working this much if I'm doing the job, getting them out," said Wil-

Ashville Poodle Parlor won two out of three from Bob's Hardware to take the championship of the Teays Valley Youth Baseball Little League.

Ashville bounced back to take the second fray, 3-2, in seven innings and set the stage for the title contest.
In a thrilling climax to the series the Ashville boys squeezed by the Hardwaremen to gain a 3-2 decision and the league title.
The winning Poodle Parlor squad is coached by Roy Rayburn and Tick Pettibone and members are Ron Bumgarner, Scott Rader, Steve Cook, Paul Welch, Jeff Jenkins, Jerry Trego, Dan Stewart, Albert Smith, Kevin Pennington, Steve Welch, Ernie Rayburn and John Pabst.

All-Stars Fizzle; K.C. Chiefs Win, 24-3

CHICAGO (AP) — In keeping with the fuzzy current picture of pro football and its labor strife, it took an unheralded walk-on to give the All-Stars collegians their only points in a 24-3 pasting by the world champion Kansas City Chiefs Friday night.
While such arms as Mike Phipps of Purdue and Dennis Shaw of San Diego State were fluttering for seven completions in 29 throws for 46 yards, husky Mike Delaney of American International, Springfield, Mass., booted a 29-yard field goal late in the last quarter to avert a shutout.
It brought a murmur from the throng of 69,940, dripping in the humid 80-degree heat and light rain at Soldier Field.
Most of their cheers had to go to the Chiefs. With only one week of organized practices—a special dispensation while other veterans remained out of training camps in the contract dispute with owners — the Chiefs looked in the pink.
Maybe, they looked good because the All-Stars looked so bad in losing their seventh straight of the series with the pros.
The Super Bowl champions, who now will blow their camp until some settlement is reached in negotiations, piled up all their points in the first half.
In the first 7 1/2 minutes of the game, 35-year-old Len Dawson hurled a 36-yard scoring pass to Frank Pitts to end a 76-yard frolic in six plays.
Later in the same quarter, Jan Stenerud booted a 43-yard field goal.
The second period was less than three minutes old when Willie Lanier stole a Shaw pass and returned it 14 yards to the All-Star 20 to set up a touchdown. Warren McVea on the fourth play slanted across end and went into the corner from the three.
Then, seven seconds before halftime, Jim Kearney, picked off a Phipps' pitch and streaked unmolested 65 yards down the sideline to score.
Dawson, hitting on 17 of 21 passes for 153 yards, finally called it quits in the middle of the fourth quarter and Mike Livingston mopped up.
Delaney, who doesn't belong to anybody but his mother, got his heroic field goal chance at the nine-minute mark of the third quarter. Randy Montgomery of Weber State and the Denver Broncos, ran back a punt 20 yards which was followed by a personal foul infraction against the Chiefs. It put the Stars on the Kansas City 18 and after Shaw's aerial probes failed, the left-footed soccer-styler Delaney hit his three-pointer.
Aside from this, and the combined 164 yards in punt and kickoff runbacks by Montgomery and Bruce Taylor of Boston U. and the San Francisco 49ers, the All-Stars were a fizzle.
Their closest approach to a touchdown came in the third when Willie Mitchell fumbled a punt and Ted Ky of Texas (Oakland Raiders) plopped on it on the Chiefs' nine.
The Stars got to the two-yard line on last down and then Shaw shoveled off to John Isenbarger of Indiana (49ers) who passed incomplete into the end zone trying to spear Ken Burroughs of Texas Southern (New Orleans Saints).
Delaney tried his field goal prowess with the Pittsburgh Steelers this spring. "But it wasn't a very good tryout and I decided to go to the Coast Guard Academy to see if Otto Graham thought I had a chance with the pros."

Windfall Noted
By Tax Agents

BALTIMORE (AP) - Julius
Salsbury, a former night club owner appealing a federal gambling conviction, had some good luck recently.
He won a Cadillac at a raffle held by the Mt. DeSales Academy in suburban Cantonville, but he elected to take $5,000
cash instead.
Salsbury's windfall did not go unnoticed. The Internal Revenue Service has filed a claim for the money as part payment for back income taxes it says he owes.

Demo Planner's Scalp Sought Byirate Females

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gertrude W. Donahey, Democratic candidate for state treasurer, has asked Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien to consider calling for the resignation of the party's policy planner.

In a telegram to O'Brien, Mrs. Donahey criticized "in strongest terms" a statement by planner Dr. Edgar F. Berman that women are unfit for leadership.

"Such 16th Century views should not be permitted to represent the views of the Democratic party," she said. Mrs. Donahey added that the Berman remark was an affront "not only to the people of Ohio but of the United States."

Berman replied that he was half joking when he remarked that premenstrual and menopausal tensions make some women unfit for high office.

Alpha 66 spokesman Diego Medina commented: "The fact that there is rebellion is shown by the widespread sabotage going on in Cuba, by fighting in the mountains, by the fact that no one wants to work and those who do, work as little as possible."

Safety Dispute Shuts Down Ravenna Ammunition Plant

RAVENNA, Ohio (AP) — Production of artillery shells at the Ravenna Army Ammunition plant has been curtailed by a strike by a group of women employees in a dispute over alleged unsafe working conditions.

The strike started Tuesday after five freshly loaded 40-millimeter shells for the armed forces in Vietnam reportedly fell to the floor in the bay of a loading line.

Reports that the shells fell because they were coming through the line too rapidly and that safety switches used to shut down the line in an emergency had been taped to prevent their use were denied Thursday by E. F. Kelly, general manager of Ravenna Arsenal, Inc. The firm is a subsidiary of Firestone Tire Rubber Co. and operates the plant for the U.S. government.

However, Kelly confirmed that 31 women had been suspended for refusing to work after an incident at the plant Tuesday. He said he did not know how long they were suspended.

Other workers stayed off their jobs beginning Wednesday because of the suspensions and strikers later picketed entrances to the arsenal.

Industrial Relations Manager D. H. Ramsey said the arsenal obtained a temporary injunction in Portage County Common Pleas Court Thursday afternoon which forbids "congregating, assembling or loitering" by strikers within 300 yards of any plant gate.

He also said that representatives of management and United Steelworkers Local 4581, which represents the employees, had agreed to meet to discuss the women's grievances when normal operations are resumed.

There was no official estimate Thursday night on how many employees were engaged in the strike and how many continued to work. The plant employs 1,400 production workers on three shifts.

Local Holstein Excels In Milk Production

Don Augur Tidy Leona 6626606, a three-year-old registered Holstein in the herd tested for David W. Glick, Ashville, has produced a noteworthy record of 17,530 pounds of milk and 681 pounds of butterfat in 364 days.

The information is made available through the cooperative efforts of the state and local testing associations and Holstein-Friesian Association of America. Dairywomen enrolled in the program pay for the service.

This level of production may be compared to the average U.S. dairy cow's estimated annual output of 8,821 pounds (4,103 quarts) of milk containing 325 pounds of butterfat. Official testing participation increases the value of the herd and provides recognition for record breaking performance.

In Vientiane, Laos, Prince Souk Vongsak, a Communist Pathet Lao envoy, arrived to meet with Prince Souvanna Phouma. Diplomatic sources described Souk Vongsak's arrival as a possible first step toward a negotiated settlement of the war in Laos.

Meanwhile, U.S. B52 bombers also hammered North Vietnamese infiltration corridors and supply depots in the southern panhandle of Laos.

The offensive in Cambodia came two days after South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu speculated that the Communist command would make its next big military move in Cambodia in an attempt to put President Nixon in the position of having to increase American aid there substantially or let the government of Premier Lon Nol fall.

South Vietnam has about 18,500 troops in Cambodia, but there were no reports of large South Vietnamese elements in the fighting zone.

U.S. B52 bombers pounded North Vietnamese supply depots 50 miles east of Kompong Cham City in the Fishhook region of Cambodia, about 80 miles north of Saigon. Informal sources said the raids were not in direct support of the Cambodian troops.

Windshields Are Broken In Accidents

Windshields were the target of flying obstacles in Pickaway County Friday resulting in two incidents investigated by the Circleville Highway Patrol Post.

An encounter with a pheasant on Route 104 about 2 1/2 miles north of the junction with Route 316 broke the windshield on a carry-all van driven by Bernard D. Mogan, Route 4, Mogan, 40, told officers the bird flew from the side of the road into his path, striking the windshield. Estimate of damage was set at $125.

The second incident occurred Friday morning just east of Route 104 on 22. A tractor-mower operated by Morton V. Call, 67, of 544 E. Main St., threw a stone into the windshield of a passing auto driven by a 67-year-old Williamsport man, Frank J. Lutz, causing $150 damage.

No one was injured in either of those accidents.

Charges of improper passing were filed against William Silcott, 22, of Chillicothe, in an accident 7:30 p.m. Friday on Route 23 less than a mile north of South Bloomfield.

Silcott pulled out to pass another auto driven by Flossie Parker and did not clear the lane, striking the left rear portion of the Parker vehicle. Both Mrs. Parker, 73, and her husband Rod, Waverly residents, complained of injuries but did not receive treatment.

Highway Patrolmen set damage estimate to both vehicles at $250.

Mitchell Says Crime Funds Won't Go Directly To Cities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has rejected the notion that federal crime-fighting funds should be channeled directly to the cities.

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell said Thursday funds for law-enforcement assistance programs will continue going to the states, whose officials, he said, are in the best position to determine where the money is needed most.

Mitchell, appearing before a Senate subcommittee, rejected the request of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., that states be bypassed—at least temporarily—to get the money directly to the cities.

The attorney general supported additional block grants to the states as provided in the 1968 crime-control law which established the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration under his jurisdiction.

Under the act, states are required to develop plans for improvement of their systems of criminal justice, including police forces, courts and correctional institutions, before receiving federal grants.

Kennedy, in urging direct grants to cities, said hundreds of municipalities are willing to pay their share of anti-crime programs and Congress is willing to appropriate the money.

He asked, "Why we don't get about it" rather than wait for the development of statewide plans? He suggested this be done for at least two or three years "while the states are getting the wrinkles out of their programs."

But Mitchell testified he is "very much for continuation of the program as it is structured." He said he believes the cities will receive an appropriate share of the federal grants through the states.

Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Nebr., and Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., supported Mitchell's position.

The subcommittee is considering a House-passed bill authorizing appropriation of $650 million in the fiscal year that started July 1 for the law enforcement assistance grants. This compares with $268 million last year.

Kennedy noted the administration had requested only $480 million for this year and asked, "Why is the figure so cautious, so conservative, so low in comparison to the need and the requests of the states?"

Mitchell told him he is not opposed to the $650 million authorization approved by the House and will ask Congress for even more if it turns out the states can use the money effectively.

Arraignment Set For Man 2 Years After Indictment

Filed Wednesday in the Pickaway County Common Pleas Court was an entry setting a $1,000 bond for Robert Orville Southard who is charged with three counts of check forgery.

Southard was indicted secretly by the September, 1968 grand jury but was unable to appear for arraignment because he was serving a term in Atlanta Federal Penal Institution in Georgia. The journal entry filed this week set a hearing before Judge William Ammer in the local court for Sept. 25. He will be released from the Federal prison Sept. 18.

Southard is accused of passing three forged payroll checks of a Cleveland firm here in Pickaway County. Each was for $133.55 and endorsed with the name of a James Bowyer and a Circleville address of 617 Renick Ave.

McDonald Would Be Top Aide To Gilligan If Elected

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
John C. McDonald of Newark, outgoing minority leader of the Ohio House, is in line to be John J. Gilligan's top assistant if Gilligan should be elected governor.

McDonald, 33, would fill the spot John McElroy holds in the Republican administration of Gov. James A. Rhodes. McElroy is Rhodes' executive aide.

Rhodes was often out boosting Ohio products and hustling new industry. Although Rhodes kept a watchful eye on his office, McElroy made many of the minute-by-minute administrative decisions. While Rhodes took the responsibility, he relied heavily on McElroy's advice.

McDonald, who purportedly has his eye on the governor's seat himself, was upset in the May 5 primary by William J. Brown of Lisbon, then a 29-year-old political unknown, for attorney general.

A top spot in the governor's office would keep McDonald in the public eye. It will be two years before he can seek election to his old House seat or four years before he can try again for a state office.

The FBI report on the May 4 slaying of four Kent State University students was not leaked by Portage County Prosecutor Ronald J. Kane but by a Washington source statehouse sources believe.

The report did not stipulate what legal action could or could not be taken, a source told The Associated Press. That reportedly was in the form of a cover memo from a Department of Justice attorney to Kane.

Richard Zimmerman, a lobbyist representing several state clients, is no longer with the Taft-for-Senate campaign staff in Columbus.

The reasons were not clear but Zimmerman said he had too many other things to do. He indicated privately he wasn't too happy with the Taft campaign operation.

Zimmerman represents among others, the Ohio Hearing Aid Dealers and the Ohio State Coroner's Association. In 1968, he worked on the successful campaign William B. Saxbe waged for the U.S. Senate.

Atty. Gen. Paul W. Brown, who has plans to go into law practice in Youngstown and Columbus, recently has been approached to join the Ohio State University law faculty.

A close associate said Brown would "seriously consider" such an offer. "It was mainly a feeler," he said, "but it came from a serious source."

Brown is a former Ohio Supreme Court justice. He was an unsuccessful candidate for governor in the May 5 Republican primary.

Mitchell Says Crime Funds Won't Go Directly To Cities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has rejected the notion that federal crime-fighting funds should be channeled directly to the cities.

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell said Thursday funds for law-enforcement assistance programs will continue going to the states, whose officials, he said, are in the best position to determine where the money is needed most.

Mitchell, appearing before a Senate subcommittee, rejected the request of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., that states be bypassed—at least temporarily—to get the money directly to the cities.

The attorney general supported additional block grants to the states as provided in the 1968 crime-control law which established the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration under his jurisdiction.

Under the act, states are required to develop plans for improvement of their systems of criminal justice, including police forces, courts and correctional institutions, before receiving federal grants.

Kennedy, in urging direct grants to cities, said hundreds of municipalities are willing to pay their share of anti-crime programs and Congress is willing to appropriate the money.

He asked, "Why don't we get about it" rather than wait for the development of statewide plans? He suggested this be done for at least two or three years "while the states are getting the wrinkles out of their programs."

But Mitchell testified he is "very much for continuation of the program as it is structured." He said he believes the cities will receive an appropriate share of the federal grants through the states.

Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Nebr., and Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., supported Mitchell's position. The subcommittee is considering a House-passed bill authorizing appropriation of $650 million in the fiscal year that started July 1 for the law enforcement assistance grants. This compares with $268 million last year.

Kennedy noted the administration had requested only $480 million for this year and asked, "Why is the figure so cautious, so conservative, so low in comparison to the need and the requests of the states?"

Mitchell told him he is not opposed to the $650 million authorization approved by the House and will ask Congress for even more if it turns out the states can use the money effectively.

McDonald Would Be Top Aide To Gilligan If Elected

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
John C. McDonald of Newark, outgoing minority leader of the Ohio House, is in line to be John J. Gilligan's top assistant if Gilligan should be elected governor.

McDonald, 33, would fill the spot John McElroy holds in the Republican administration of Gov. James A. Rhodes. McElroy is Rhodes' executive aide.

Rhodes was often out boosting Ohio products and hustling new industry. Although Rhodes kept a watchful eye on his office, McElroy made many of the minute-by-minute administrative decisions. While Rhodes took the responsibility, he relied heavily on McElroy's advice.

McDonald, who purportedly has his eye on the governor's seat himself, was upset in the May 5 primary by William J. Brown of Lisbon, then a 29-year-old political unknown, for attorney general.

A top spot in the governor's office would keep McDonald in the public eye. It will be two years before he can seek election to his old House seat or four years before he can try again for a state office.

The FBI report on the May 4 slaying of four Kent State University students was not leaked by Portage County Prosecutor Ronald J. Kane but by a Washington source statehouse sources believe.

The report did not stipulate a close associate said Brown would "seriously consider" such an offer. "It was mainly a feeler," he said, "but it came from a serious source."

Brown is a former Ohio Supreme Court justice. He was an unsuccessful candidate for governor in the May 5 Republican primary.
